'I Need Ney'— Bennett

By IAN STREET

NANAIMO — Premier Bennett called on an overflow crowd here Friday night to "join in the rising tide of support for Social Credit," and elect all four government candidates in northern Vancouver Island ridings Aug. 27.

He made the appeal to an audience of 678 which packed a downtown theatre and a handful who listened to his 40-minute speech over a public address system in a nearby hall.

Despite the good turnout, however, the Soerend end of this city's triple attraction for the evening which was billed as "Bennett, Berger, and Bingo" turned out to be a pretty tame affair. The audience included many brought in from other parts of the Island and a few from Powell River and there were only a few scattered boos and no heckling during the speeches.

BINGO BIGGER

The biggest crowd of the evening was at bingo in the civic arena which offered prizes worth $25,000 for the last game.

At the Soerend rally Mr. Bennett made a strong pitch for the election next Wednesday of government candidates Frank Ney in Nanaimo, Dan Campbell in Comox, Dr. Howard McDiarmid in Alberni, and Dr. Charles Enns in Cowichan-Malahat. All were present and spoke briefly.

Because the government is the biggest business in the province, the premier said, it needs men of experience and administrative ability. He hinted at the many benefits which would come to this community if Mayor Ney was returned as the local MLA rather than incumbent Dave Stupich, the New Democrat seeking re-election for a third term.

"I wouldn't be human if I didn't say I was in Nanaimo tonight on serious business. I need your help. I need your mayor Frank Ney."

PROMISE HOLDS

The premier said his promise to improve ferry and highway links to the north Island would be carried out in 1970 regardless of local results provided that Social Credit won the election. But he urged voters to show they appreciated the government's help. He added: "If you help us, we'll help you."

Mr. Bennett told the rally that while other governments were being forced to cut back their services this province was in such good financial shape that B.C. would continue to grow under Social Credit.

"With the help of Frank Ney we will help the city of Nanaimo expand and grow. Your mayor would have to

Berger Woos Drivers

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

NANAIMO — NDP leader Tom Berger drew cheers here Friday night when he said in a packed school gymnasium that an NDP government will go into the car insurance business and cut premiums by 30 per cent.

Mr. Berger told about 600 people in the Quennell school gymnasium that car insurance companies "say they're all losing money — let's find out."

"We believe that the government plans will be 30 per cent lower" in premium rates than current rates of the 188 insurance companies in B.C.

UNJUST, COSTLY

Mr. Berger said the government legislation making it compulsory to buy car insurance from private companies is unjust, expensive and unfair. The NDP leader referred to the Wootton Royal Commission which he said had established as fact that insurance companies were charging exorbitant premiums and providing inadequate coverage.

"We don't believe that you should be forced to buy from these companies," Mr. Berger said. He said the motorist should be forced to buy from private companies or from a government plan.

PRaise QUOTED

With national NDP leader Tommy Douglas seated beside him, Mr. Berger said the car insurance plan introduced by the former Saskatchewan premier has been praised by "Consumers' Report" and that well-known NDP publication, the Wall Street Journal.

"If it's good enough for the Wall Street Journal, it's good enough for me," Mr. Berger said.

Mr. Berger's announcement drew a series of outbursts of cheers and applause from the apparently all-NDP meeting.

McGeer Aims Fire At U.S. Union Rule

By PETER KIERNAN

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer Friday night promised a Liberal government would wipe out any British Columbia legislation under which Canadian unions could be the object of discrimination.

He told a news conference that American domination of unions was "a threat to our sovereignty" and added that he would see to it that Canadian unions were given equal rights.

'DISTURBED'

"I am deeply disturbed by the degree of domination of labor unions by Americans. . . I am anxious that Canadian unions be allowed full participation," Dr. McGeer said.

He said that of 2,000,000 card-carrying union members in Canada, 70 per cent were in American-dominated unions. Between 1962 and 1966, $180,000,000 from Canadian unionists went into the coffers of U.S.-based organizations and only $130,000,000 came back to this country, he said.

"It is obvious that some U.S. unions are benefitting from Canadian contributions," Dr. McGeer said a Liberal government would "take a long, hard look" at any arrangements under which union funds found their way from Canada to the U.S.

"No laws will exist that work to the disadvantage of Canadian unions," he said, citing what he termed "sweetheart agreements" in which a pact between business and unions could keep outside unions off the job.

"I want to make it clear that we are not anti-union, but pro Canadian union," he said.

The news conference was the Liberal leader's first function in Kamloops as he moved his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election into the Interior for the second time.

Unlike the sometimes cool reception he received during a three-day Vancouver Island swing, which ended Thursday, he was greeted here by about 200 chanting, placard-waving supporters.

'Formula Stays'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, a former education minister, said Thursday the Social Credit government will not scrap the controversial formula governing school financing. It would be changed and adjusted as necessary.

He was speaking to the B.C. Teachers' Federation. For the second part of Bill Staudal's series on B.C. education, dealing with the formula, see Page 26.

Trudeau Assault Charge Turned Down by JP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice of the Peace Don Stewart Friday turned down the attempt of a 17-year-old Ontario youth to bring Prime Minister Trudeau to court to face a common assault charge.

Mr. Stewart read a brief written judgment in which he said he found "inconclusive" the evidence of Richard Bruce Jesmer, 17, a laborer from Niagara Falls who claimed he was hit in the face by Trudeau here Aug. 8, and Jesmer's supporting witnesses.

He said he will issue no summons or warrant requiring Trudeau to face the charge in court.

APPEAL POSSIBLE

Jesmer could appeal the decision to a higher court, but he said after the decision was given that he had not made up his mind.

Jesmer had testified under oath Tuesday that during an anti-Vietnam war protest Aug. 8 he called Trudeau "a . . . creep" and "Mr. Trudeau turned and hit me."

Mr. Stewart said he had heard sworn testimony from Jesmer and his witnesses Tuesday. "Because of the notoriety of this incident," he had also heard what he called extraneous evidence—from three police officers who testified Tuesday "as friends of the court."

But even without this extraneous evidence, his judgment said, "the evidence of the informant and his witnesses, although apparently sincere, is inconclusive and when viewed in the light of all the circumstances in which the alleged incident took place, it would be, in my opinion, an abuse of the court's process to proceed further and therefore no summons or warrant will be issued."

Flower Spreaders Scattered by Tanks

PRAGUE (UPI) — Army emergency law providing swift punishment for disturbing the anti-Soviet rally of 5,000 students Friday night in Brno, the Moravian capital where at least three persons have been killed protesting the first anniversary of the Soviet Union's invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia.

While students and soldiers were fighting for the fourth consecutive night in Brno, the government announced an emergency law providing swift punishment for disturbing the "socialist order."

The Brno students were reported spreading flowers through the square in memory of three persons killed there earlier in the week when the military force arrived.

The tanks blocked the major exits and the soldiers surrounded the square, then moved into it forcing the students out through a small street.

Voters' List Major Riddle for Albernis

By PETE LOUDON

PORT ALBERNI — A 43 per cent increase in the voters' list in Alberni electoral district since the 1966 list was compiled is confusing street corner election forecasters here.

About all anyone will say (except the candidates), is that "it's going to be a tight two-way fight."

By two-way they mean a battle between Dr. Howard McDiarmid, Social Credit, a Tolino physician who won the seat by a comfortable margin (almost 2,000 votes) in 1966, and John Squire, NDP, who sat as an MLA for Alberni between 1952 and 1966. Liberal candidate and political beginner Eugene Romanuk is generally conceded to be out of the running.

However, the vastly increased total of voters may help Romanuk too. A young candidate and a popular one with the younger set, he has geared his campaign to the first-time voters. There must be a lot of them. Either that or there are a lot of dead people on the list. Alberni voters' list in 1963 showed 14,860 eligible voters. This year it shows 21,326. If 73 per cent vote, as happened in 1966, the new wave of voters could throw out any calculations anyone might make on the basis of 1966 returns.

The suggestion that there are many people on the list who now are dead or who have moved away is not far-fetched. It was reliably learned that the enumeration conducted in this area with its far-flung polls, was so poor that the old list was used as a basis for the new one.

New names collected by enumerators were added, but few names, if any, were deleted. More than one person has already made public complaints about finding a long-dead relative is listed to return to cast a ballot.

Returning officer Tom Johnston went so far as to announce Wednesday that apparently there are some deceased listed and some situations were people have been listed more than once, in different polls, but the Valley need have no fear, a person may only vote once.

His faith in the system isn't shared by a letter writer to the local Alberni Valley Times by Ivan Shumuk.

He says the voters' list is an unbelievable example of inefficiency or just plain stupidity and he fears it may be used as a reason for a demand by the losing candidates for a new election here.

"Almost every page contains numerous mistakes. Numerous names are duplicated, people dead for years and those who have moved away are still on the list. Many names appear in two or even three polling stations. There could be thousands of names on it that don't belong there."

No Different

THIS ELECTION campaign is no different from any other such exercise in verbiage in that the participants have shown an amazing susceptibility to foot-in-mouth disease.

Many of the combatants from all parties have been inflicted, and it is truly alarming when you look past the hilarity of some of the statements.

All parties have been guilty of forms of advertising that lead me to believe they must think we're all a bunch of grammar school dropouts.

MIND YOU! the fact a party could be swept into power on the strength of the carney-blarney titillation of the kissing prowess of a 47-year-old bachelor makes a lot of us suspect in this regard.

The value of many statements made by many candidates would appear to be to the side other than their own. I'm thinking, in particular, of Premier Bennett's flowery praise of Flying Phil over in Kamloops. Let's face it, Gagliardi is strong enough in that area to get elected without any help from W.A.C.

And let's also be honest about it. W.A.C. conceivably lost votes for his party in other ridings through his endorsement of the controversial Gagliardi.

NDP STATEMENTS that it has proof the Soviets will ask for Hydro rate increases, if returned to power, were quickly refuted by Ken Kiernan, and it's hardly likely the government would ask for such an increase after one of its own ministers makes a public denial.

There are those who would have you believe the media can elect or defeat candidates or parties. This was undoubtedly true 30 years ago, but I hardly think press, radio and TV has such power today. I think much of the electioneering is wasted time and money. Many of the predictions being made by the various leaders as to the number of seats they will get are so much balderdash. They're guessing the same as the political pundits.

JUST LIKE I'm guessing when I write that Bennett will once again head the government, but with a reduced majority. I haven't the temerity to make an individual riding evaluation. Anybody who does is either a full-fledged genius or simply exercising his lungs.

Locally I have to feel Herb Bruch will win in Esquimalt. I think Chant and Skillings will squeak through in Victoria and Tisdale will win in Saanich. A pure tossup in Oak Bay between Wallace and Cox. My spies tell me Bennett will lose Ralph Liffmark and Herb Capozzi in Vancouver ridings and possibly minister without portfolio Grace McCarthy in Vancouver-Little Mountain.

IT WON'T come as any great shock to me if any or all of the aforementioned prognostications go down the drain. The voting public may or may not have made up its collective mind at this point, but I hardly think any great amount of public ballyhoo by the contestants at this late date will be enough to make any great inroads on the final outcome.

I'll finish this political offering with a few contributed lines.

"Bennett says why fear Pat McGeer. McGeer says no merger with Berger. Berger says, send Bennett to the Senate."

IN MY cartoon over on the editorial page today, the horse has an iron weight coming down from the bridge. This was used by the old milk and bread wagons to keep the horse from wandering away. Fine, but what is the name of that weight? Seems the name has been lost in the passage of time, so maybe some of you oldtime milkmen or breadmen can clear up this nagging little memory lapse.

Changing Doctors Easy Not Question of Ethics

By G. T. THOSTERSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosterson: What do you consider an ethical way to change doctors? — T. O.

This isn't a matter of ethics. Rather, it is a matter of tact and diplomacy.

For example, if you want a doctor whose office is nearer to your home, there's no reason you can't tell your doctor so and ask him to refer you to one in a suitable location.

Or, as is sometimes the case, if you would prefer to go to a certain hospital in case of need, you could reasonably ask to be referred to a physician who is on the staff of that hospital.

But if you are simply dissatisfied with a physician and don't care to give him a reason for changing, all you have to do is stop going to him and make an appointment with the new doctor.

Patients change doctors right along without ceremony. Some, in fact, change too often and don't give themselves or the doctor the benefit of a good relationship.

As to going to two doctors at the same time, without their knowledge, don't do it. It doesn't hurt the doctors, but it can hurt you, because you might be getting medication from both of them. I've known this to happen, with unfortunate results.

Dear Dr. Thosterson: I understand that high potency vitamin B-6 with other vitamins, calcium, etc., has been used with good success on patients with different kinds of arthritis. Can you enlighten me on this? — Mrs. A. A.

There have been claims made for all sorts "arthritis treatments" but I know of no still evidence to indicate that vitamins are of any help — unless, of course, the patient happens to be deficient in vitamins to start with.

Dear Dr. Thosterson: I thought Lannoxin was a new name for digitalis but my druggist says it is not. My doctor calls it digitalis and I take it to prevent my heart from beating a little too fast. — M. F.

Quite likely your druggist meant that it is not a new form of digitalis rather than it is not digitalis. For you see, it is digitalis, which is available in different forms for different purposes. They can vary, for example, in the speed with which they are used by the system. The doctor may call for the type he wants for you, by its trade name, although it is still digitalis.

Thieu Plans Cabinet

Vietnam's Premier Bows to Pressure

SAIGON (CP) — Under growing pressure, Premier Tran Van Huong stepped aside Friday to clear the way for President Nguyen Van Thieu to name a new South Vietnamese cabinet.

Huong's action was short of a formal resignation and technically he remained as premier. But a statement issued after a meeting between Huong and Thieu made it clear Huong no longer was hanging on to the position he occupied for nearly 15 months.

The Huong cabinet has been in limbo since Thieu announced July 19 he would make major changes to broaden the base of his government and include representatives of minor political groups.

Officials said at the time that Huong would remain on, but opposition to the ailing 66-year-old premier increased.

Huong, former school teacher and only civilian of major status in the government, is a popular southerner. But his administration came under heavy criticism recently for its handling of security and economic affairs.

Called Inefficient

Members of the National Assembly and Thieu's new six-party political alliance repeatedly have called for his resignation. He has been criticized for increasing import duties and for not keeping in touch with pending legislation. His administration has been called inefficient and critics said Huong failed to root out corruption in his places.

Last May, at a ceremony marking a year in office, Huong announced plans to increase civil servants' salaries and military pay, but was unable to get increased funds from a hostile parliament.

More Problems

With Huong eased aside, Thieu still had a formidable problem. He was not lacking premier hopefuls, but two leading ones are generals, like Thieu himself and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky.

They are Gen. Tran Van Don, who took a leading role in the 1963 coup against President Ngo Dinh Diem, and Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, deputy premier and interior minister.

Taking on Khiem or Don as premier would in effect put a military triumvirate at the head of Thieu's regime. He himself has professed a desire to put more civilian politicians in key jobs. There are no prominent civilians evident to take the job.

Nixon Firm On Korea

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — President Nixon, faced with a stalemate in the Vietnam peace talks and new pressure to pull out of Thailand, pledged jointly with the leader of America's staunchest Asian ally Friday there would be no retreat from Korea.

In a joint communique winding up their two-day conference, Nixon and South Korean President Park Chung Hee promised their common forces along the 38th parallel will remain "strong and alert" to continuing Communist aggression.

"The two presidents reaffirmed the determination of their governments to meet armed attack against the republic of Korea in accordance with the mutual defence treaty between South Korea and the United States," the statement said.

Thailand Flareup

U.S. Considers Reduction Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking to cool tempers, the state department announced Friday the U.S. will open consultations with Thailand on reduction of the force of 48,000 American troops and airmen stationed there.

In a collateral step, the department sought to dispel the idea that Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird's public disapproval of a military contingency agreement with Thailand constituted official repudiation of the bilateral understanding.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the plan continues in existence, and while he agreed with Laird that it is on the shelf he said also that it could be taken down at any time as necessary.

The latest flareup over the secret plan has caused fresh irritation and uncertainty in Bangkok over U.S. policies and these found expression in a published report Friday of a call by Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman for discussions on pulling American troops out of the country.

Thanat said congressional enemies of the contingency plan, which provided for the possibility of U.S. forces some time fighting for Thailand, have not been satisfied with official assurances and therefore he wants to talk about getting American troops out of the country.

Difference of Purpose

In announcing U.S. readiness to talk, McCloskey put a different emphasis on the purpose of discussions by speaking of "a gradual reduction of the level" of U.S. forces.

Privately, highly-placed officials said it is important to the United States to continue the use of several air bases in Thailand from which huge B-52 bombers take off to strike targets in Vietnam.

These officials expressed confidence that Thanat and other Thai leaders do not intend to force the United States to pull out all its troops and airmen while the Vietnam war continues.

But they concede that relations have been deeply irritated by the secret-agreement quarrel between the Nixon administration and critical senators.

Of the 48,000 troops in Thailand, three-quarters are air force men and one-fourth are army units engaged mainly in providing logistic support for the air force.

In addition to the 48,000 McCloskey continued, about 1,200 American servicemen are engaged in providing training and advice to Thai military forces.

The U.S. Air Force in Thailand operates from six bases. It has long been expected that when the war in Vietnam ended these bases would quickly be reduced in number and whether any American forces remained in Thailand for a long period of time would depend on decisions still to be made in Bangkok and Washington.

Australian Held in Mosque Blaze

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Israeli police Friday arrested a 28-year-old Australian sheep shearer on suspicion of setting the fire at the El Aksa Mosque Thursday which sparked off angry reaction against Israel from Moslems the world over and demonstrations in Jerusalem.

Arabs have accused Israel of deliberately setting fire to the 1,200-year-old mosque, one of Islam's most sacred shrines, and Moslem leaders have called for a "jihad" (holy war) against Israel to win back Moslem holy places.

The Australian, Michael Rohen, was arrested outside Jerusalem. A judge ordered he be held in custody for 15 days, said Jerusalem Police.

Collective Farm

Australian Ambassador William Landale talked to Rohen and said later the man arrived in Israel about four months ago. Rohen stayed some of the time in a collective farm, and was known to have learned some Arabic and Hebrew.

Under Israeli procedure, Rohen will have to be indicted before a district court within 90 days of his arrest if he is to stand trial. Israeli law provides a maximum of 20 years imprisonment on conviction of arson.

A formal charge may be made later by the district attorney when police complete their case.

Mob Dispersed

Earlier Friday, Israeli troops broke up Arab demonstrators near the mosque by firing over their heads with automatic rifles for the second day.

Between 200 and 300 young Arabs threw stones at the troops, and an Israeli officer suffered a gash in his forehead.

A former Jordanian defence minister, Amrwar Nusseibeh, said in Jerusalem that the initial findings of a Moslem committee of inquiry indicated the fire was caused by sabotage.

At the UN, 24 Moslem nations asked Secretary-General U Thant for an impartial investigation of the fire, independent of any Israeli inquiry aimed to "delude world public opinion."

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese were reported bringing up reinforcements Friday in a battle south of Da Nang that has blazed without letup since Sunday.

From miles of interlocking bunkers, the North Vietnamese held back U.S. infantrymen and stood up to a pounding by artillery and waves of fighter-bombers 31 miles south of Da Nang.

The battle broke out Sunday when two companies of U.S. troops bumped into a strong North Vietnamese force believed about to attack the refugee center of Hiep Duc.

Eight Aboard

But since Wednesday it has been a battle between the North Vietnamese and U.S. forces trying to reach the wreckage of an American command helicopter shot down in the hills with eight aboard. All were believed killed.

By Friday night officials estimated 35 to 40 Americans had been killed and more than 150 wounded in what has turned into the biggest battle since the North Vietnamese opened a full campaign last week.

North Vietnamese deaths were estimated at more than 470, most of them the result of barrages of artillery, bombs and flaming napalm.

Sharp Fighting

Despite the sharp fighting, the Americans were little closer to the wreckage than when they began the drive Wednesday.

Intelligence reports said an unknown number of North Vietnamese reinforcements appeared headed toward the battlefield and were last spotted about six miles away. More than 1,000 North Vietnamese are believed now locked in the battle with 1,200 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

After Friday's fighting, the American companies, now greatly under strength, withdrew to nearby Nui Len, some taking up positions to gird for another night of mortar barrages and to try to rest for new assaults in the morning.

Voice of Experience

BRITISH COLUMBIA HAS HAD a succession of premiers, dating back to its very beginnings, of more than ordinary courage. Some of them may have been misguided, but, offhand, it is difficult to point to a single instance of pusillanimity. They have been a dogged breed, and W. A. C. Bennett is no exception. Many of them have been colorful, "characters" in the idiom, like Amor de Cosmos, the incredible Joe Martin, Sir Richard McBride, Brewster, who doggedly fought his political battles in spite of failing health. "Honest" John Oliver of P.G.E. fame, the dictatorial "Duff" Pattullo whose generosity was legend, "Boss" Johnson, who was a better athlete than politician, and many more. And Mr. Bennett is one of this company, too.

He has many attributes. He was the only member of the legislature, with the exception of the late Mrs. Tilly Rolston, to recognize that the old parties, as well as the coalition government, had "lost" the electorate.

It was to counter the alternative of socialism that this long-time Tory seized on the idea of Social Credit and put to work a theory that has paid him and this province substantial dividends. Socialists, in his mind, are the enemies of progress, because progress is best served by free enterprise. In consequence, socialists are Mr. Bennett's enemies. He will fight them as long as he draws breath. Let there be no doubt of that.

So, in this context, Mr. Bennett has made free enterprise as opposed to socialism the key issue of his current campaign.

If there seems to be some over-emphasis on the confrontation, it is because Mr. Bennett fears that indifference on the part of the electorate could allow, at least, a political position which would leave a minority with the balance of power, and at worst a socialist majority which might result in an investment drought in this province.

He is concerned that complacency might allow the socialists to gain control as they did in Manitoba, because, as he says, the people "were asleep."

It would be quite wrong to dismiss Mr. Bennett's warnings of New Democratic Party aspirations and determination here, and of their ultimate goal, to sweep eastward to control at Ottawa, as political histrionics.

He believes what he says. He believes his apprehensiveness is legitimate because he cannot accept socialism as an alternative form of government in this province or this country. He is sounding a rallying cry for those who prefer to rely on experience and perspicacity in government and the time-tried formulas rather than experiment with a partnership of labor and radical intellectuals.

None of his predecessors in office faced the same challenge. But of them all he is probably the best equipped to cope with it.

The man who perceived the need for change in 1952 now warns against it. He was right before and there is no reason to believe he is not right again. It would be wisdom to heed his advice.

Drastic Remedy

AN UNEASY calm has settled upon Northern Ireland with British troops playing the role of peace-enforcers if not peace-makers. By the end of this week the Ulster garrison will have almost doubled to a strength of 6,000 troops deployed in two brigades whose job it is to keep rival factions apart and to prevent Catholics and Protestants from fighting each other.

Describing the problems and purpose of the troops under his command Lieutenant-General Sir Ian Freeland said earlier this week: "We have to be extremely alert. We have pushed out patrols and made friends impartially, trying to influence the local people to be good and pull down their barriers."

However he warned that the "honeymoon" period between the British soldiers and the local people, now at its peak, could be short-lived. If nothing were to come out of the London-Belfast meetings it could finish "in a matter of hours and soldiers could become targets for both sides," he said.

The military commander's gloomy presentiment is widely shared by a number of responsible people in Great Britain though few have expressed these fears publicly. Only one Labor member of Parliament has even had the temerity to raise the matter.

In a recent interview E. L. Mallilieu, Labor MP for Brigg and one-time Liberal MP for Colne Valley, sadly dismissed the welcome British troops have received from both religious factions in Ulster as a temporary rapture.

He visualizes British troops becoming tied down in Ulster by a situation which could go on for years without any prospect of a settlement and eventually becoming exasperated by both sides. Why, he asked, should British troops be exposed when they have no hope for success?

The best solution to the problem Mr. Mallilieu stated would be to follow the Prime Minister of Eire's suggestion for a United Nations peacekeeping force to be moved into Ulster. "If we can get in a United Nations force, in spite of the feeling of hurt pride both here (London) and in Ulster, there is a chance of a real settlement coming out of it."

Undoubtedly his view will outrage both the British and Ulster governments, yet Mr. Mallilieu is no religious sympathizer with the south. He is a devout Anglican and, in fact, holds from Prime Minister Wilson the appointment of Second Church Estates Commissioner—the Church of England's one official representative in the House of Commons.

Mr. Mallilieu is obviously neither anti-Protestant nor anti-authority. He is, however, against any delay brought about through unrealistic or hopeless policies and against British troops being set up as whipping boys for extremists from both sides.

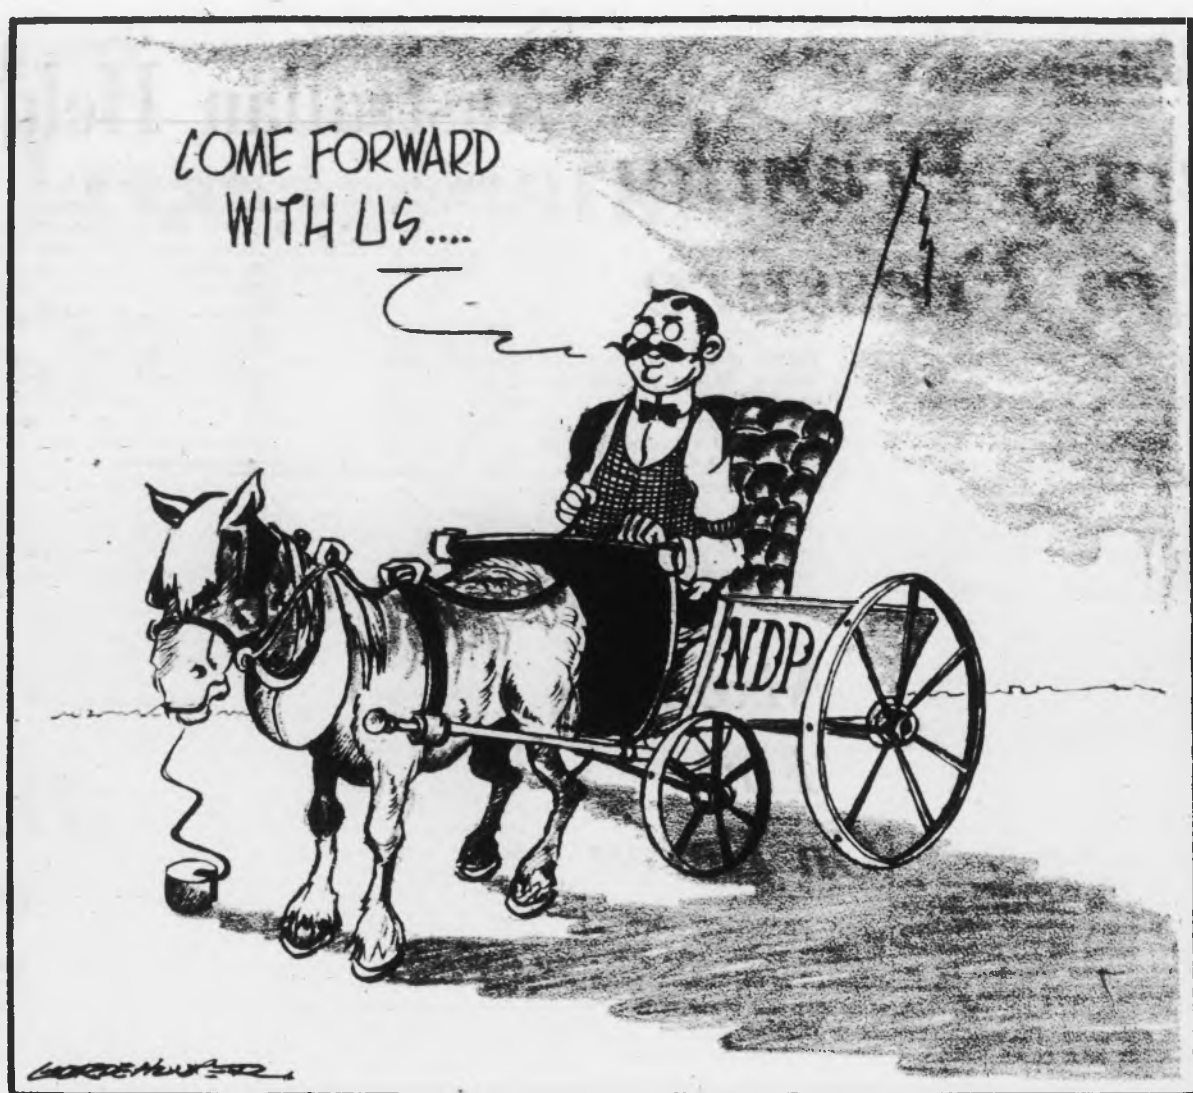

And for this his view deserves at least some consideration.

Another Mail Muddle?

IN CALGARY THE LETTER Carriers' Union of Canada has rejected Ottawa's appeal for restraint in wage demands, serving notice it will fight for "substantial" increases, shorter work week and various other benefits.

The prospect of another strike in this area will encourage consideration of creation of a Crown corporation in the post office or even assumption of the job by private enterprise.

In view of all the circumstances, and the dissatisfaction with the post office generally, these alternatives deserve serious study.

The Paradox That Is Britain

By MARQUIS CHILDS

London's Sprawling Hippie Spectacle Hard to Accept Among the Civilized

THIS is the summer of the hippie wave, the summer that will be talked about wistfully in dank, dark summers for years to come. It is the summer of the greatest tourist boom this civilized old city has known in recent times when despite new building there is a shortage of up to 20,000 hotel rooms.

As the debate goes on over whether little England, shorn of the responsibilities and privileges of a great power, is an acceptable status, civilized is a two-edged word. For the detractors at home and abroad it means overcivilized — decadent, effete, played out. The Tories boil with indignation at many of the sights and sounds — and smells — of contemporary London.

John Biggs-Davison, Conservative member of Parliament for Chigwell, fulminated in a letter to the Evening Standard about the condition of Piccadilly Circus, "once the focus of a great commonwealth of nations." Around Eros (the statue on a raised platform in the centre of Piccadilly Circus), like barbarians camped amid the monuments of a dying civilization, sprawled with their luggage and their litter, one finds a pseudo-hippie horde. "What," cried out Mr. Biggs-Davison, "became of London's pride?"

For others who admire the self-respecting way in which Britain has been able to put down power, forewearing the habits of empire, civilized has another meaning. It means the civility, the courtesy, the understanding of a people who have learned to live in their crowded islands with quiet contentment. This is the lesson for the last third of the 20th Century as crowding and the conflicts that go with it are the rule not for Britain alone but for almost every part of the world.

An event on British television celebrates the civilizing force of the arts over nearly 2,000 years. The 12-part series in color, written and narrated by Sir Kenneth Clark, former director of the National Gallery and one of the most erudite and at the same time humane of men, can properly be called an event. For it ranks as one of the most creative uses ever seen of the medium revolutionizing contemporary life. Filmed over two years in 11 countries, with production costs close to a million dollars, the series called "Civilization" has already been shown twice on prime time on BBC-2. In the fall when the principal channel, BBC-1, goes into color it will be shown to a much larger audience.

The series is now being offered for sale in the United States. The question is whether on American commercial television a sponsor can be found willing to pay for time for a program that, superficially at least, has so little relation to popular taste. In the last of the series, opening with a long sweep of the New York skyline and panning to the dark and crowded canyons of the metropolis, Sir Kenneth sums up with tempered optimism the future beyond what he calls the "heroic materialism" of our time. He is even optimistic about the young whom he believes are better educated, better fed, more fair-minded than any generation in recent history.

Britons who sat spellbound before the television screen for the moon landing are all but unanimous in their enthusiasm for the American achievement. It was the triumph of technology and teamwork, with the astronauts exploring a new world that had been from the time of creation beyond the reach of man. All the media celebrated in every detail this triumph.

Partly this was the pride that Britons feel in having given the initial impetus to establishing the land across the sea. The son had done the mother proud. In the special relationship with America that Britain clings to, the ties to the past are of paramount importance. Today it is a love-hate relationship. The United States has the great power role that Britain exercised throughout the previous century. The question is whether under far more difficult circumstances the Americans can employ the restraint which must go with great power if they are to escape Armageddon.

One week the moon triumph holds the headlines in the press. The next week the big, staring, black headlines record the so-called ritual murders in Hollywood. And Sen. Edward Kennedy's tribulations get more space than in American newspapers. When the giant across the Atlantic, the super-power, shows a seamy side it is inevitably bad news. For many Britons this is doubtless a source of sorrow and regret. You want your son towering against the Western horizon to do well. But for the others the German word Schadenfreude, joy in others' trouble, may be part of the reaction. Surrendering the habits of empire is far from easy. Gibraltar, Northern Ireland are trouble spots where power, whether past or present, is not enough. But the civilizing force is strong in a people who have come through so much.

Coates' Digging Uncovers Extravagance Amid Austerity

ASK just about any Liberal MP—front or backbencher—who among the 110 members of the combined Conservative-New Democratic-Creditist opposition irritates them most. Not, mind you, who does them any real and lasting damage. Because that kind of political wound is pretty difficult to inflict.

For the Liberals with their 154 seats have a majority of 44 in the Commons, and barring the dropping of a parliamentary bomb by the Opposition won't be facing up to an election for another three years.

So simply ask who irritates, annoys, upsets and embarrasses them.

Regularly. Day in and week out with maddening monotony. Not New Democratic Leader Tommy Douglas with his school-teacherish lectures on how it can't really be a Just Society until the socialists take over.

Npt NDP Deputy Leader David Lewis with his anti-American diatribes and his charges of Ottawa being a mere Washington lackey.

Not Conservative Leader Stanfield with his quiet laments of government incompetence.

No, none of those, nor even Creditist Leader Real Caouette with his anguished protests that the Liberals — with their "reforms" of the Criminal Code and even of Parliament itself — are undermining the traditional values and the established standards.

Chances are very good you'll find the name that is at or near the top of what Liberal Trade Minister C. D. Howe, in his plain-talking way, used to call "our SOB list" is that of Robert Carman Coates, Conservative MP for Nova Scotia's Cumberland-Colchester North constituency.

Robert C. Coates has been building a good, solid Opposition parliamentary career not by making speeches, but by asking questions.

Speeches in the Commons don't bother a government all that much, especially when they come from the backbenches (and sometimes even from the frontbenches) because so often only Hansard is listening. And that word-by-word record of talk in Parliament hasn't got mass circulation, something, in fact, not much over 5,000.

But questions are different. For questions aren't asked by an Opposition MP unless they are the kind he suspects the government doesn't want to answer.

Questions and answers, unlike speeches, don't go ignored. Especially when they are written — requiring answers in writing — and can't be shrugged off.

Robert C. Coates' specialty has been the personal kind of question.

How much did this cabinet minister spend of the taxpayers' money on new rugs for his office?

How many ex-Liberal MPs have been given snug government jobs?

Who are the deputy ministers topping $25,000 on jobs that only 10 years ago paid $15,000?

Which members of the cabinet are tooled around in luxury limousines?

The questions are all asked with the purpose of showing that while the government preaches "restraint" for the taxpayers, it practises self-indulgence.

The questions and answers deal with figures that everybody — especially the taxpayers — instantly understands.

Not billions. Just thousands, even hundreds.

What sort of answers has Robert C. Coates pulled, like teeth, from the government? A sampling:

Item: 12 ex-Liberal MPs are on the federal payroll at an annual salary cost of $204,000, the best paid, Jack Pickersgill picking off a cool $40,000.

Item: Services and Supply Minister James Richardson has, among other comforts and luxuries in his office, a cosy wall-and-ceiling electric drier — instead of towels — to toast him in a warm glow after showering.

Item: External Affairs has six, count 'em, six deputies between $27,000 to $40,000, when only a few years ago there was one.

Item: Prime Minister Trudeau has four press secretaries in the $12,000-$21,000 salary range, while Lester Pearson managed with two, John Diefenbaker with one, and Louis St. Laurent and Mackenzie King with none.

Item: On the prime minister's own personal staff there are 17 executive aides (chiefs) costing an annual $306,000 and five lesser lights (Indians) with a total payroll not much under $350,000.

Robert C. Coates is a very inquisitive, if to the government, rather embarrassing MP.

Welfare Planner

Nixon's New Aide Comes from Slums

By NORA BELOFF from Washington

DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN, a large, ebullient Irish-American of 42, flew out to California this week to put the finishing touches on President Nixon's plans—which are largely Moynihan's own work—for the biggest overhaul of the American welfare system since President F. D. Roosevelt's New Deal. Last year the same man went to the same state to participate in Robert Kennedy's Democratic presidential campaign.

In Mr. Nixon's White House of super-smooth lawyers, conformist Republican politicians and top level advertising men, who are all wonderfully at home in their West Coast summer resort, Moynihan, whose temperament is as Irish as his name, stands out like a sore thumb.

Sprung from a working-class family in Harlem, New York, Moynihan has all his life been an impatient tumultuous social reformer. His gusto and humor collide with the placid and solemn majority of the Nixon staff and after his appointment as President Nixon's counselor on urban affairs, his own friends were the first to predict that he would not last long.

But in a whole series of social pronouncements — on child care, birth control, food stamps for the poor — Nixon had already made quiet nods in Moynihan's direction. And the president has now turned his back on his more orthodox advisers in agreeing to Moynihan's whole welfare package.

Nothing in his early life or career seemed to prepare this tough child from the Harlem slums for a prominent role in a Republican administration. His working-class origins turned him into a natural Democrat and already in his early youth he was involved in city ward politics where, later, he twice unsuccessfully ran for office. Leaving school, he worked as a dockerman in Hudson Bay and it was only after serving in the U.S. Navy during the war (he was only 19 when it ended) that he went on to college, quickly showing himself intellectually qualified for an eminent academic career. As Fulbright Scholar he went on to the London School of Economics, learning there that the Americans, despite their vast wealth, were dimly behind other industrially advanced countries in caring for their sick, the poor and the aged, and the children. He came back with an indignation that never subsided.

Always keener on action than theory, Moynihan had his first experience of government as member of Averill Harriman's staff when this millionaire Democrat became governor of New York. It was there that Moynihan got to know the Kennedys who were quick to see that he knew far more than they ever could about the conditions and needs of the poor.

From 1961, when President John Kennedy brought him into his administration, until June 1968, when Robert Kennedy was killed, Moynihan was commonly identified with the Kennedy set. His shattering unexpected emergence at the end of the same year as Mr. Nixon's right hand man on domestic affairs can only be explained in terms of two intervening dramas. The first was his public dispute with the liberal and Democratic protagonists of the existing welfare program, which he came to consider a disaster.

Which drew out angry private feud with President Johnson who had seemed at first to be taking Moynihan's advice on welfare and moving along the path now taken by President Nixon, but had finally got wholly — and, in Moynihan's opinion, calamitously — immersed in the Vietnam war.

Moynihan's relentless attacks on the anti-poverty programs which dale out goods, services and advice to the deserving poor gave him the reputation of harshness particularly towards blacks who were the principal beneficiaries. Yet although no American with political ambitions would dare call himself a socialist, in terms of social commitment Moynihan was to the Left rather than the Right of the liberal establishment. Among other things he believes that it is the duty of the federal government to see that every man and woman who wants to work can find a job; if this is not available through private business he sees the federal government as "the employer of last resort." He has not yet sold this idea to Nixon but he feels that the new manpower program with additional training facilities and computerized labor exchanges, is a sensible first move in that direction.

Many people were antagonized by Moynihan's savage denunciation of the program for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC): this he claimed had been initially introduced after the war to care for mainly white widows but, in the absence of the necessary family allowances, had been diverted to provide relief for the ever-growing numbers of illegitimate or deserted Negro children. Benefits under AFDC are withheld from families headed by a working male and Moynihan said it was "ominously close to dishonest" for social workers to refuse an impartial investigation into charges that this type of welfare encouraged the breakup of Negro families and relieved Negro men of any sense of responsibility for their children.

Scathingly, Moynihan commented that "casework and counselling of the poor, particularly the Negro poor, has had relatively little effect on the clients however much they may have enhanced the status of the caseworker."

Several black leaders felt he had insulted them by discussing Negro private lives even though he affirmed the issue was class not race. He attributed their efforts to his fundamentalist Protestant tradition they brought with them from the South—which was itself remorselessly intolerant of free love or illegitimacy. In his view the black community is less marked by its inheritance of slavery than by its inheritance of "Bible Belt fundamentalism."

Pressing for more generous and less particular methods of welfare, Moynihan was bitterly hurt when his criticism was misinterpreted as racist and reactionary. But his hard-nosed reputation stood him in good stead with anti-welfare Republicans who applauded him as a hammer of the liberals and made no objection when Nixon brought him into the White House. Once well established near the throne he has managed to persuade Nixon that although the old welfare system does need to be scrapped it also needs to be replaced by a broader scheme giving more money to twice as many people as before.

Most people who know Moynihan believe that if he had failed to get presidential assent for the basic switch to minimum incomes and wider benefits, he would have gone back to his regular job as head of Urban Studies at Harvard.

Today he recognizes that the struggle is not yet over; laws need to be drafted, funds secured, hostility overcome inside and outside the Nixon administration. Nonetheless he feels his decision to go over to the Republican side has been vindicated; the Democrats would never have dared propose anything so radical, he will tell you. Only Mr. Nixon could get away with it.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

The World Council of Churches was formed in Amsterdam 21 years ago today — in 1948 — embracing churches from every part of the world. By the time of its second world assembly in 1954 it represented 163 churches from 48 countries. The accord reached at Amsterdam removed much of the disunity in Christendom dating from the Great Schism of 1054 when the Christian Church divided on an east-versus-west basis. The council has no power over the churches but it is a means of initiating common discussion and action.

1914—Japan declared war on Germany.

1926—Rudolf Valentino died.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today — in 1944 — Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced the liberation of Paris by partisans. The heaviest flying bomb barrage of the war hit south England. Allied Supreme Headquarters announced the destruction of the Nazi SS panzer division which murdered 19 Canadian soldier prisoners.

Strange Attitude

From the Edmonton Journal

Five young Calgary vandals recently sprayed paint on four schools, causing $700 in damage.

In partial mitigation of their offence, they volunteered to remove the paint. They had the job about half done when the Calgary Public School Board ordered them to stop, saying a clause in a labor contract specified that such work be done by union labor, at the expense of the taxpayers, of course.

If the contract can be interpreted in this way then, to paraphrase a famous saying, the contract is an ass. Or perhaps the fault lies with those interpreting it.

Scholar Turns Politician

Stumping 'True Happiness'

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Can a neurochemist who once performed a frontal lobotomy on a dead killer whale trade his horn-rimmed glasses for contact lenses and find true happiness in British Columbia's political jungle?

This is the hypothetical question Dr. Patrick Lacey McGeer, leader of the B.C. Liberal party, might have been asking himself since he succeeded Burnaby-Seymour MP Ray Perrault last October.

Happiness for Dr. McGeer, one of Canada's top brain experts, used to be pure research on the effects of chemicals on the human mind in his laboratory at the University of British Columbia. Today, it's the downfall of Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit government in the Aug. 27 provincial election, and replacing the "Doctor" at the front of his name with "Premier."

Dr. McGeer has traded the formidable brain for the unfathomable of politics. He's been in the midst of a razzle-dazzle, horn-toting campaign that has taken him to all corners of the province.

Everywhere he goes, Dr. McGeer comes up with bigger and better predictions of Liberal strength.

When he left Vancouver for the interior a few days after the election was called, he said the best the Grits could hope for was to hold the balance of power in a minority government situation. A couple of weeks into the campaign he was confidently predicting 20 seats for Liberals of 55 in the B.C. legislature, and when he returned, he predicted a clear majority.

At dissolution, the Liberals had six seats, Social Credit 31 and the NDP 17, with one vacant.

Shortly after he took over the leadership, the party professionals decided that the first order of business would be to give their man a new image.

"Pat, you've gotta get rid of those glasses," the public relations people told him.

"Makes you look to a much the scholar," he said.

He did get rid of them—being grudgingly, because he is a scholar and a brilliant one—and had a set of contacts fitted. Then, following the familiar Trudeau road, they told him to go athletic.

This was more to his liking because Pat McGeer was and still is athletically inclined—he played basketball on the 1948 Canadian Olympic team. Pictures started popping up of Dr. McGeer running, jumping, jogging, swimming and water-skiing, a fine physique for a man of 42.

Dr. McGeer hit the campaign trail with a vengeance. Almost everywhere he went there were parades, sometimes bands, always speeches, hundreds of handshakes and a plethora of bubbling teenyboppers.

He dashed into the campaign full of enthusiasm, resurfacing periodically on the coast with frothy predictions, and issued a steady stream of campaign promises coupled with a slashing attack on the Bennett government.

Dr. McGeer has been hitting hardest at Social Credit's work in the field of pollution control. "The day I take office will be the last day raw sewage goes into any water—lake, river or ocean—in this province," he told a meeting in Vernon, and he meant it.

The new Liberal leader is trying to elbow his way into the no-man's-land between Social Credit on the right and the New Democratic Party on the left.

Mr. Bennett has remained singularly unimpressed by Dr. McGeer's efforts and says the Liberal leader has "been jumping and hopping all over the province trying to generate enthusiasm that isn't there."

The centre of the political spectrum has been further constricted by the virtual demise of the Progressive Conservatives provincially in the last two elections.

The Liberals concede privately that this is a do-or-die fight, that Dr. McGeer is the best man they've got and if he can't increase Liberal legislative strength no one can.

Anything less than six seats on election day would be an irreparable catastrophe—12 seats is a realistic Liberal objective.

Dr. McGeer's credentials till inches of type. They start with a BA from UBC, a doctorate in chemistry from Princeton University at 23, then back to UBC for a medical degree in 1958.

Along the way he picked up a Canadian Mental Health Association career award and was the author of more than 40 scientific articles published in various international journals.

His wife Edith, herself an outstanding chemist who received her doctorate at 22, was a co-worker in many research projects. They have three children, two boys and a girl.

Dr. McGeer took his first plunge into provincial politics in 1962 and soundly trounced a Social Credit in a by-election. He soon earned a reputation as one of the Bennett government's toughest critics.

His excursion into the strange world of whale surgery occurred when Vancouver's first captive killer whale, Moby Doll, died a few years ago. Someone said Pat McGeer should do the autopsy, and out came the scalpel.

Perhaps his most impressive feat was his drive against the hallucinatory drug LSD on the floor of the legislature during the 1968 session. The province eventually passed stringent legislation against its consumption and distribution.

"Kooks like Timothy Leary aren't going to improve the mind with drugs, especially something as potent as LSD," Dr. McGeer said. "Contrary to what self-styled gurus like Leary preach, LSD does not expand your consciousness—it just gives that impression by impairing judgment."

In the meantime, Dr. McGeer has answered his own hypothetical question—yes, he has found true happiness in B.C.'s political jungle.

"There's no more important job than leading a political party with the chance to become premier," he said. "There's no job as important as that."

Berger Pledge:

Free Buses for Seniors

From CP

A New Democratic Party government would extend free B.C. Hydro bus privileges to all old age pensioners, NDP leader Tom Berger said in Vancouver Friday.

Mr. Berger said his party would allow pensioners to ride buses 24 hours a day at no cost.

Hydro operates bus service in the Vancouver and Victoria areas. At present, pensioners pay $5 every six months for a pass that allows them to use transit buses between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The $5 senior citizens' pass fee amounted to as much as the fee provided by old age pensioners, Mr. Berger said, and "everybody knows pensioners can't afford to subsidize Hydro or anybody else.

He said Premier Bennett is destroying his own credibility and damaging the Social Credit party with a flood of "absurd accusations" against the New Democratic Party. "The premier is waging a campaign of fear. But I don't think anyone is afraid except the premier—and he's afraid of his job."

Earlier, in Trail, Mr.

Berger said Social Credit is "corroded with patronage" and cited the appointment of Works Minister W. N. Chant's son-in-law as returning officer in Victoria riding, where Mr. Chant is seeking re-election.

Meanwhile, Premier Bennett said in Powell River that unless workers returned Social Credit, they faced dictatorship under the NDP.

His message was the same at Gibsons and Sechelt. He said the "labor bosses" in B.C. are already telling workers to support the NDP "and when the labor leaders tell the workers how to vote, liberty is going out the window, my friends."

He made the statements in reference to a letter mailed to trade unionists by the B.C. Federation of Labor, urging them to support the NDP.

"It will be a dark day in the history of British Columbia if the workers follow the labor bosses on political matters," he said. "They will lose their freedom."

"You all know what happened to Czechoslovakia a year ago, and what is happening here today."

Liberal Leader Dr. Pat McGeer said in Port Alberni Thursday that "under Premier Bennett's government we have been sending our mentally ill to jail."

He said there were no facilities in B.C. for emotionally disturbed children.

He spoke of two occasions when mentally ill persons had to be charged and jailed so they could receive what he called proper psychiatric attention through court action.

In Vancouver, Conservative leader John de Wolf, his party's only candidate, said industry and municipalities should be given time to clean up pollution—then be taxed if they don't.

Mr. de Wolf said his pollution control program with its pollution tax would tax motorists who do not use available exhaust control devices.

In Burnaby, Gordon Dowling, seeking re-election for the NDP in Burnaby-Edmonds, said an NDP government would mean a Liberal to head the legislature's public accounts committee.

A Social Credit, he said, would try to muzzle the committee in investigation of the Social Credit government's accounts.

In Vancouver, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said a request of the B.C. Teachers' Federation that candidates who support a BCTF publicity campaign in the election use a BCTF symbol in advertising was an insult to voters' intelligence.

"You can't expect any of us to completely identify with the aims of any professional group," he told a BCTF conference. The campaign, among other things, opposes Social Credit's current education finance formula.

Oak Bay Election Corner

Dr. G. Scott Wallace

In these closing columns I would wish to sum up my policy and to restate my aims if elected to the Legislature. In general, I approve of and support the policies of the Social Credit Government. Under the very able leadership of Mr. W. A. C. Bennett, this province has undergone tremendous expansion and development, bringing a high standard of living and valuable social progress to all its residents.

A place of the highest honor in the history of British Columbia is well assured for Mr. Bennett. In my opinion, however, a candidate who has not participated in the present government should not dwell on the accomplishments of the past, however creditable they are, but should offer to the electors, only the positive progressive ideas by which he believes the performance of the present administration can be even further enhanced. It is these ideas I have tried to convey in this column of the past three weeks. My basic political philosophy is I believe in the free enterprise system and the conviction that government should not intervene in or seek to control the affairs of the individual which he can well manage for himself. Government, however, must preserve a strong awareness of social need and be prepared to provide those essential services which the individual cannot reasonably provide for himself. The most urgent need of this community is the creation of appropriate hospital facilities to provide the appropriate level of care to all patients. As a practicing physician, all too well aware of the present need, and willing to face the vacancies of political office, I believe that I can render to the people of the Oak Bay-East Spanish riding, indeed of this whole area, a useful service by contributing my energy, interest and experience towards a solution of this problem.

My further aims would be to encourage the continuing development of a first class system of education and to support those measures which by preventing and controlling pollution will create an even healthier environment for every resident. As an Alderman on Oak Bay Council, it has been my constant aim to remain informed, alert and outspoken. This would be my continuing aim as a member of the Legislature. Our future may be beyond our vision, but need not be beyond our control."

Trudeau Visit Violence

Rathie Places Blame on NDP

Former Vancouver mayor and current Social Credit candidate Bill Rathie has accused the NDP of planning and carrying out the violence that marked last week's public appearance of Prime Minister Trudeau in Vancouver.

"The people who did their best to wreck the Trudeau meeting by spreading terror and violence are the same people who are trying to seize the government of B.C.," Mr. Rathie said in Vancouver, where he is contesting a Point Grey seat.

"What happened to Mr. Trudeau was no accident. It was planned by admitted NDP supporters," he said.

"The attempted arson, damage to public property, assaults, violence and the illegal assembly—these are the work of the ugly organized elements that exist in the Socialist party."

Mr. Rathie was referring to last Friday's Liberal fund raising dinner at Seaford Armory in Vancouver when Prime Minister Trudeau was pushed and shoved by demonstrators when he tried to speak from the back of a truck outside the armory.

After the prime minister had gone inside, the demonstrators set fire to piles of rubbish near the walls and pounded on the doors.

He said the same lawlessness that marked Mr. Trudeau's visit has occurred previously during visits to Vancouver by two former prime ministers—Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker—but it had never happened when NDP leader Tommy Douglas arrived.

Undemocratic, NDP Charges

Highrise Canvassing Out

Victoria's highrise apartment owners are hounding the "democratic process" by refusing to allow political canvassers into their buildings, NDP candidate Phil Fawcett charged Friday.

"We are being put together with the Jehovah's Witnesses and religious groups that are trying to persuade people of something," he complained.

Building owners have refused to lift their bans on unsolicited canvassers and sales agents for the election.

"It's not just political canvassing; it's canvassing of every sort," said William Chaney, manager of the 30-suite highrise, Goodacres Towers.

"The only exceptions made to this company policy since the buildings were built in 1964 were for the Red Feather campaign two years ago and for two university students doing a study on apartment living last year.

"Most of the people in this building, especially the 85 per cent who are retired, just don't want to be disturbed."

He explained that residents who were interested could reserve the apartment lounge for coffee parties or other political meetings.

"That's what the bouncers are for; I like to see people take an interest in things."

He also said canvassers could contact residents through the intercom system and ask if they wanted to meet them, but Mr. Fawcett said this would be too time-consuming.

Candidate Makes Up For Lost Message

A forgotten candidate made a belated appearance Friday at the Victoria Silver Threads Centre, two days after his opponents had spoken.

Oak Bay Social Credit candidate Dr. G. Scott Wallace should have been invited along with eight other Victoria and Oak Bay candidates to a meeting Wednesday, but the message didn't reach him. Instead, determined to show he wasn't avoiding issues, Dr. Wallace made a brief speech and answered questions on a personal basis Friday.

B-Specials Ordered to Stack Arms

BELFAST (CP) — Britain took a firmer grip on the troubled affairs of Northern Ireland Friday, ordering "most of the controversial B-Special police reserves to stack their arms and dispatching an experienced political troubleshooter to the scene."

LA-Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, whose 6,000 British troops have taken charge of all internal security in the province, told a news conference all of the predominantly-Protestant B-Specialists were off the streets of riot-torn Belfast and Londonderry.

Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority has blamed the B-Specials for most of the eight deaths in last week's Catholic-Protestant riots.

But militants and right-wing members of the governing Unionist party regard the 9,500-member armed force as a key to Protestant domination of Ulster.

The general said only 500 reserves remain on duty, most assigned to guard police barracks and other vulnerable points in the countryside.

Guns of the reserve police are to be kept in armories, Freeland said.

"The arms are being taken from the homes for security reasons and to get them more under control so that I, as security commander, can feel that all my forces are much more under my control than they have been until now."

Late Friday, Oliver Wright, British ambassador in Denmark and former private secretary to Prime Minister Wilson, was appointed to serve as Britain's link with the Northern Ireland government.

Wright served as Wilson's emissary during some of the negotiations over Rhodesia's declaration of independence.

In the Bogside slum section of Londonderry, Catholics have set up their own internal government, designed mostly to keep out the B-Specials.

A 400-man defence force guards barricades and roads on the edge of Bogside with the sworn intention of keeping the Specials and Royal Ulster Constabulary from ever entering up working-class Protestants, Bogside again.

Cowichan Derby Climax Sunday

The 50 top Cowichan Bay anglers will be on the water bright and early Sunday to compete in the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's big ladder derby fishoff for top prizes of $75, $50 and $25, plus two hidden weight prizes of $5 each.

It looks like it may be a good fishoff derby, for while spring (dinkoo) salmon haven't appeared in so great numbers in Cowichan Bay as they have in other years, it appears the average weight of those that are there is a little heavier than usual. The derby ends at 8 p.m. with weigh-in at the government wharf.

But Gold Down

Mineral Production Up in 10 Categories

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of 10 of Canada's leading minerals, including copper, nickel, petroleum and natural gas, rose during the first half of this year over the same period last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

Production of gold, iron ore, and six other minerals were down.

Gold production fell in June to 208,427 troy ounces from 214,473 in June last year, bringing half-year production to 1,270,361 troy ounces compared with 1,366,007 last year.

Fire Risk Rising In Woods

A slow drying trend is gradually increasing the fire hazard throughout the province, officials of the B.C. Forest Service said Friday.

They said the worst blaze is a merger of two fires in the Clarke Lake area southeast of Fort Nelson. It has covered 400 acres of sparse timber and is being fought by 25 men and a water bomber.

Six new fires were reported overnight for a total of 87 in B.C., with nine bulldozers and 132 men on the firelines. Five fires were still burning in the Vancouver forest district, where the hazard remains low.

Quebec Gets Tough

QUEBEC (CP) — An anti-terrorist army of 60 police forces Friday launched the most extensive government campaign against terrorism in Quebec history.

At the same time Justice Minister René Paul disclosed that the Union Nationale government is considering legislation "to regulate freedom of speech" by limiting freedom of demonstration.

Paul announced government measures at a news conference where he urged Quebecers to help police "to insure that terrorists will not even dare to leave their dirty holes."

There are some of the words he used to describe terrorist bombers: cowards, unbalanced persons, criminals, revolutionary extremists, crawling invertebrates and serpents.

The Justice minister said this is the first time in Quebec history so many police forces have co-ordinated efforts with a tripartite involving RCMP, Montreal police and provincial police.

In effect virtually every single police force in the Montreal and Quebec City regions has established its own anti-terrorist squad to conduct special patrols.

Police are to make spot checks on motorists in search for anyone carrying dynamite and will "increase patrols and surveillance of individuals the places suspected for terrorist activity."

Paul said: "I beg the pardon of the people if they are inconvenienced, but this is a serious matter and the population should participate in the administration of justice."

Paul said the government is considering legislation "to limit public meetings held out-of-doors" by granting municipalities certain regulatory powers.

Toronto Police Goof Again

TORONTO (CP) — A man who had never driven or owned a car was wrongly arrested on warrants involving traffic charges and spent 13 hours in police cells, it was learned Friday.

Lloyd William Evans, 36, was arrested on warrants for driving a car with his licence under suspension and for not having car insurance. Police said he was mistaken for a man called William Evans, 38.

It was the second such case reported in the city within a week.

that thousands of warrants are being issued," said Inspector John Crilly.

Earlier this week, John Bennett of Windsor, Ont., was released after spending five days in jail. He had been mistaken for another man by that name and had been arrested for failing to pay a parking fine.

Alberni Puzzle —Voters' List

appear also in the South Port polling area.

And names numbered 86, 87, 904 and 905 are listed also in the Beaver Creek polling division.

On Page 213 the person listed under number 1727 is dead. People listed under numbers 1729, 1732 and 1739 moved away and the name numbered 1750 appears also in the Cherry Creek polling division.

"My wife is listed in two polling divisions . . . and the name of my son who moved to Burnaby two years ago is still listed despite the fact that I notified the enumeration office well in advance."

The Alberni Valley Times in an editorial a week ago warned Valley residents that this situation was apparent and asked all party scrutineers to be on the lookout for miraculously resurrected on dead persons who might be Aug. 27.

If the election is upset by technicalities such as those which unseated a Liberal candidate in the federal election last year, many good burgers fear the town will become the laughing-stock of the Pacific Coast.

Earlier in the campaign it was noted that enumerators had failed to visit many of the tiny upcast logging camps in this constituency. The IWA commissioned travelling representatives to take registration cards to these camps.

***

Subsequently Social Credit candidate Dr. McDiarmid said publicly that the IWA had attempted only to register NDP voters. The union denied this and stated that several management personnel who "would never vote NDP" also were registered.

The resultant union solidarity, not necessarily for the NDP, but opposed to the Social Credit charges, is not expected to do anything for Dr. McDiarmid's chances.

He is also in hot water with local Indians.

They have proved they have long memories and keep bringing up the situation in 1962 when Dr. McDiarmid, in an attempt to bring larger medical allowances from Ottawa, went on strike insofar as Indian patients were concerned.

***

Two that he turned away proved to be a youth with a broken neck and a woman with a hemorrhage, who were treated at Port Alberni and Nanaimo respectively.

The native voters revived this issue at a meeting Monday in Friendship Centre where Dr. McDiarmid attended without any party officials at his side, to make amends.

He also was faced with the need to make a public apology for the effect of his speech in the legislature this spring when he said efforts to integrate Indian students at

District 79 were hindered when native youngsters attended integrated school with head lice and scabies. Dr. McDiarmid stuck by his guns, pointed out that he had said a minority was to blame but the legislative press gallery had misconstrued his remarks.

***

He may have made amends, but the Indian audience gave no indication of this and young firebrands indicated they were voting NDP.

Many people here believe this is another sign that Alberni will go NDP in the election.

Dr. McDiarmid's ace in the hole was an announcement Tuesday at Ucluelet that the provincial government would relocate the highway between Port Alberni and Tofino and Ucluelet to avoid mountainous switchbacks.

The $3,400,000, 13-mile project along the shores of Sproat Lake is expected to cut the travelling time between the centres almost by half and to open vast new areas of lakeside land to speculation.

Whether this is enough to turn the tide remains to be seen.

Oil Permit Sales Notch Record

The B.C. government took in south of Dawson Creek and near a record $11,961,631 this week the Alberta boundary. from oil companies for oil and Deputy Mines Minister Ken gas exploration permits on land Blakey says the sale was easily the biggest in the history of the province's oil industry, nearly $4,000,000 higher than the previous best at any one crown sale, in February 1965 when the total bid was $8,001,536. Union Oil of Canada took 50 per cent of a 400-acre spread at a cost of $2,739,000 in an area said to be on the line of the D3 formation which has produced rich strikes in the Strathcona-Ricinus gasfield of Alberta some 30 miles to the east. The other 50 per cent of the 480,000 acres sold for the same price, and once again Union Oil had a share of it.

The Union-Exaco acreage produced $22 an acre on a bid of $1,614,000.

FOUR FIRMS

Another big buying group consisted of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, Shell Canada, Amoco Canada, and French Petroleum. It acquired 73,051 acres for $1,148,785.

Del Norte Oil paid $169,799 for a 9,113 acres drilling reservation 84 miles northeast of Fort Nelson.

The big money has been spent on practically unexplored foothills territory.

The wells on the Alberta side of the border are described by B. M. McGillivray, B.C. manager of the Canadian Petroleum Association as being "deep, expensive holes, but in a very prolific gas area."

He added the oil companies were pretty hopeful that the same formation would extend to the B.C. side of the inter-provincial boundary.

JAPAN'S BIG SHARE

The British Columbia and Yukon Chamber of Mines says that Japanese investment in western Canadian mines has grown to $60,000,000 and that the current market for B.C.-Yukon minerals and metals in Japan is about $150,000,000 a year.

The chamber also estimates that by 1975, the annual exports of minerals to Japan will be $550,000,000.

"By far the largest portion of dollars generated by new mining ventures will be left in this country in the form of wages, municipal, provincial and federal taxes; purchases of equipment, supplies and services; and dividends," says the report.

LARGEST FACT

The largest financing contract with Japan is the one for $28,000,000 just signed for the development of the Lorne mine in the Highland Valley.

In addition the Japanese have invested $7,500,000 in both Brenda Mines and Gramine, and $5,500,000 in Bethlehem.

What Japan is contracting to buy in metals and minerals $90,000,000 worth of coal from Kaiser; $42,000,000 of copper from Lorne; $40,000,000 of lead, zinc, silver from Anvil Mines; $25,000,000 of copper from Brenda; $25,000,000 of copper from Granduc and $8,000,000 of copper from Churchill.

The minerals from a number

In Esquimalt

Fred Phillips desires to serve this community at the Provincial level. He feels that people come first, things second. He does not subscribe to the premise of politics in B.C. being a choice of either far right with Mr. Bennett or far left with Mr. Berger. The large number of people in this Province who are strictly "middle of the road" and who are looking for guidance in this election can find the leadership and guidance they are seeking with the Liberal Party.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Heavy long-distance traffic and new personnel at B.C. Telephone Co. are causing delays in long distance and information service, a company spokesman said Friday.

He said some are still taking training courses and are on switchboards for the first time.

Los Angeles Bakes In Smog and Heat

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles had its third smog alert Friday in as many days as a heavy brownish-orange layer of polluted air hung over some sections, baking in a heat wave.

Friday's first stage alert was called when the ozone count reached .58 parts per million parts of air in the southeast section of the Los Angeles basin. The reading later climbed to .60 PPM in the east San Gabriel Valley.

Meanwhile a series of major brush fires, whipped out of control by Santa Ana winds blowing out of the desert, raged

In Wake of Camille

More Bodies Found

From CP

Recovery teams searched the ravaged towns and countryside of Virginia, Louisiana and Mississippi Friday, finding still more bodies of Hurricane Camille's victims, as damage estimates by insurance officials mounted into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Mississippi's death toll seemed likely to reach 315, a civil defence official said, and Louisiana reported 10 dead in the marshland country ripped by the storm last weekend.

In Richmond, Va., flood waters in the James River crested to a record high and began slowly receding.

With the count of known dead in the mountainous west from floods standing at 54, with more than 100 missing and with property damage estimated at $87,000,000, Governor Mills Godwin Jr. said:

"It appears that perhaps at least 100 of our citizens have lost their lives."

In Pass Christian, Miss., recovery teams searched the wreckage of this once-gay resort, finding still more bodies.

'WILL BE REBUILT'

Gov. John Bell Williams vowed the coast would be rebuilt to become "one of the finest—if not the finest—recreation areas in the country," but President Nixon's disaster recovery chief estimated it would take three to five weeks just to restore public services and utilities.

Navy construction teams were gas masks against the smell of death as they combed the debris. More than 100 bodies have been found in Pass Christian, about 60 miles east of New Orleans and where the long white sand beach starts.

CASKETS BROKEN

Searchers reported that the hurricane's swamping tides had washed bodies from a Pass Christian cemetery, complicating the search for victims. Broken caskets were found among the wreckage.

Communications disrupted by the hurricane made it impos-ible to reach a comprehensive total of the dead.

But Nap Cassibry, civil defence co-ordinator for the coast, placed the toll in Harrison and Hancock counties—two of the three slashed by Camille—at "approximately 235." He said he did not have figures for Jackson County.

"We may never know actually how many were killed," Cassibry said. "Some will be carried as missing for a long time before they're declared officially dead."

U.S., Russian Arms Ban

Seabed Pact Near

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union have agreed to a treaty to ban the emplacement of nuclear weapons on the ocean floor, it was reported Friday.

Highly authoritative eastern and western disarmament officials said the projected agreement will represent a compromise between proposals made by each side five months ago.

The American and Russian delegations at the Geneva disarmament conference have agreed to postpone the recess of the talks by two or three weeks while negotiators work on the compromise treaty text in an effort to reach an accord, the officials said.

The conference was originally expected to recess Aug. 28.

ALL WEAPONS
The United States proposed last March that all nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction be banned from the seabed beyond a coastal limit of three miles.

The Soviets proposed a total ban on all weapons, in other words complete demilitarization of the seabed, beyond a 12-mile limit.

American negotiators rejected this proposal on the grounds that it would be impossible to verify and, more important, it could ban such vital devices as ocean-floor submarine warning and identification systems.

BOTH OCEANS

The United States is known to have such devices installed on the floor of both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Under the compromise formula now being negotiated, officials said, Moscow will accept the U.S. proposal for a ban on just nuclear and other mass destruction weapons emplaced on the seabed.

But the text should make it clear that this is to be a first step towards the banning of other weapons systems, the Soviets insist.

America, in return, would agree to later study of other arms as well as agreeing to the Soviet 12-mile limit proposal instead of three miles.

Warren Wins Award

Victoria Parks Administrator W. Herbert Warren will go to Moncton, N.B., next week to receive an award which marks him as one of the top parks men in Canada.

The award for outstanding achievement is made annually by the Parks and Recreation Association of Canada. When the news came through Friday morning, a telephone poll of aldermen decided Mr. Warren should receive the award personally.

All Pink Salmon Fishing Banned in Washington

OLYMPIA, Wash., (AP) — State fisheries director Thor Tollefson, saying the Washington pink salmon run is in danger, Friday ordered an unprecedented statewide closure on the species, beginning next Wednesday.

As of 12:01 a.m. that day it will be unlawful to fish for pink salmon with sport or commercial gear in any Washington waters, either salt or fresh. The closure will apply until further notice, to both commercial and sport fishing.

In certain areas, there will be additional restrictions on commercial gear.

Tollefson said Indians on reservations will also be urged to refrain from fishing for pink salmon.

"This complete closure is necessary because, frankly, the Washington state pink salmon run is in jeopardy," Mr. Tollefson said.

Massive flooding of spawning grounds destroyed great numbers of eggs and salmon fry in 1967 and a poor run this year was anticipated. But extreme protective measures are now imperative as all indications point to an even more critical situation than we expected."

Travel Tips from STAN DELAPLANE

Japan Peaches No Cream

TOKYO — Japan is steaming in late summer now, and the gorgeous Japanese peaches are in their brief season. They must be eaten in their own juice — add cream or sugar and you destroy them.

You should have them for breakfast in a cool Japanese inn.

The maid takes you to the pine-floored bath with its wooden buckets and sunken steamy tub. You dress in a fresh cotton kimono-like yukata. Your bed has been taken up and put away. The paper shoji screens are pushed back — the room opens on a sunny garden.

On the low table, on a delicately brushed plate, is the golden peach. Just as you see it in 1000-year-old prints.

The Financial Times of London says Tokyo has the highest food prices in the world. However, we've been eating sushiyaki dinners at $4. We also ate at Han Nya-Eh (Fortune calls it one of the world's great restaurants) and caught a tab for $40!

A single room at the plush Okura Hotel is $14. Silk scarves are a good buy at $1.75 to $3. Wako is best of the department stores for tourist shopping. The best of the night clubs is Akasaka. Maria Cherry still runs the Conacabana, the most elegant. And most expensive.

Beautifully dressed hostesses — $2.80 to $3.20 an hour for their dancing-sitting company. They expect a tip, that's unusual in this not-tipping country. You do NOT tip bellboys, waiters, taxi drivers in Japan.

A night club evening can nudge you for $50 easily. But Japan Travel Bureau will give you a sampling on a tour that costs only $12.30.

"For a couple of boys used to camping out, how about England? Or do they have rules against this?"

Probably some rules about where you camp. But you'll find out easily because I saw lots of English kids with sleeping packs in some wonderful hiking country.

One of the best is a footpath that runs 136 miles along the Thames — it's the old tow path. Runs through pastures, beech forests, small villages. Another is the Lake country, just below the Scottish border. Roman forts. Pine tree hills. Beautiful lakes. I would guess you could do this on $5 to $10 a day.

***

"Will I have difficulty explaining how I want my hair done in Europe? I mean do they speak English in beauty parlors?"

They do in all the expensive tourist hotels. Once I got a very good haircut in Madrid, and I had passport photos taken of it.

I used those to show barbers in places where they didn't speak English. Maybe you should do that before you go.

***

Couple of new things I ran into: Cabs from London airport now charge what the meter says. (Used to be they could charge anything they liked — and they liked a lot.) But be sure the cab has a meter. Some of the starters try to push you into an unmetered cab where anything goes.

You might like to open a charge account with Harrod's.

Fleisher Spurs U.S. To Walker Cup Lead

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The U.S. Walker Cup team, spurred by two remarkable comebacks by amateur champion Bruce Fleisher, took a 7-3 lead over the British rivals Friday in the first day of the 22nd International golf match.

Fleisher, 20, was paired with Allen Miller in the two-ball foursome matches in the morning against Peter Benka and Bruce Critchley and had to wipe out a three-hole deficit in the final seven holes to halve the match.

But in the afternoon, playing against Michael Bonallack, a four-time British amateur champion who has won the empire amateur crown the past two years, Fleisher played like a duffer on the first nine to turn five down as Bonallack clipped three strokes off par.

Bonallack held that edge for the next three holes, then Fleisher rallied, winning five consecutive holes to even the match before they halved the final green to wind up dead-locked.

The Fleisher-Bonallack match was the first of the eight singles and it set the pace for the U.S. golfers to win five of them. The most one-sided victories were by Richard Siderowf over Peter Tupling of Britain and Edgar Updegraff over Britain's Rodney Foster, each by a 6-5 score.

The Other U.S. victories were one-up wins by Vinny Giles over Charles Green and by Allen Miller over Critchley, and 2-1 by John Bohmann over Michael King.

Britain's pair of singles wins were by Benka, 3 and 1, over western amateur champion Steve Melnyk and one-up by Geoffrey Marks over Lanny Wadkins.

NHL Owners Assume ...

Reserve Clause Next Issue

TORONTO (CP) — National Hockey League owners have bowed to player demands and agreed to assume the entire cost of pension plans, it was announced Friday by the players.

At Englewood, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, said the owners also have agreed to discuss the controversial reserve clause which has bound players to one team.

Under the pension scheme, eligible retired players receive $300 annually for each year of service in the NHL. The pension is available at age 45 and payable for life.

The new plan replaces the present formula of owners matching the $1,500 paid annually by the players.

Englewood said the agreement would erase any possibility of a strike by the players in the near future.

"Seeing that the owners are also ready to discuss the reserve clause, I think we've made real progress."

In the past, owners refused to discuss the clause, he said.

In addition to the pension, the owners agreed to pay the entire cost of the players' health insurance scheme.

Shaw Stretches Lead In Avco Golf Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Tom Shaw of Golf, Ill., calmly cut out his second 68 Friday and took a five-stroke lead into today's third round of the Avco Golf Classic.

At 136, he was eight under par over the 7213-yard, par-72 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

George Knudson of Toronto added a 72 to his opening 69 and was alone in second place at 141.

The blustery wind that marred Thursday's play subsided somewhat, but the hilly layout continued to play very, very tough.

Billy Casper rallied for a 70 but missed the cut for the first time in PGA play in five years. He had a 151.

A score of 150 or better was needed.

Expos Extend Mauch Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos announced Friday they have added two years to team manager Gene Mauch's current contract, extending it to the end of the 1971 National League baseball season.

He had five birdies, Friday, two when he reached par fives in two and two-putted. He also chipped to within five feet of the hole for another and ran in birdie putts of 35 and 15 feet.

His only bogey came at the 13th hole when he put his drive under a tree, was short of the green and missed a putt.

Besides Casper, others missing the cut included Texas Open champion Deane Beaman and former Masters champion Bob Goalby.

Williamsport scored two runs in the last of the third and hung on for a 2-1 victory over Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, Valleyfield topped Wiesbaden, Germany, 3-1.

Pierre Rochefort, who was also the winning pitcher, socked a two-run homer for Canada in the top of the first.

Rochefort Hits Homer As Valleyfield Wins

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Williamsport, Pa., captured fifth place and Valleyfield, Que., took seventh in the Little League World Series Friday in a pair of consolation division game victories.

Aussie Wins Canadian Title

OTTAWA (CP) — Ross Case of Brisbane, Australia, following the example set by fellow countryman Rod Laver 13 years ago, won the Canadian junior open tennis championship Friday.

Case defeated Venezuela's Jorge Andrew, 6-2, 8-6, 6-2, in the boys under-18 final as John Chris Barikowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., the girls under-18 competitor who whipped Lourdes Diaz of Mexico City, 6-2, 6-3, in the winner's circle.

The five-foot-eight Case was just too much for the Venezuelan, who was competing despite a groin injury suffered earlier this week.

Case hopes to follow Laver into Aussie Davis Cup team ranks, and from there into the professional game.

The victory in this tournament was his third in a row on his current tour. He took the British Columbia junior clay court championships and an open tournament in Washington State within the last month.

Next on Case's list are tours of South Africa, England and the Europe.

DOUBLE WINNER

Miss Barikowicz was a double winner. She took the under-16 title by defeating another American, Susan Goodwin of Winchester, Conn., 6-3, 6-4.

In the under-14 class for girls, Donna Stockton of Garden City, N.Y., had little trouble, breezing to the title with 6-2, 6-0 victories over Janet Hall of Vancouver.

Saanich Seniors Hear Candidates

"What happens if I can't pay for my drugs — do I die?" "Certainly not — you'll not die under a Liberal administration."

This combination of a question from a woman in the audience and answer from Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm triggered a burst of laughter Friday at a Saanich-Islands all-candidates' meeting.

EXPLANATION However, the seriousness of the matter — the woman said she required drugs to stay alive — brought a more detailed explanation from Mr. Lindholm of what his party would do.

With Soerod John Tisdalle and the NDP's Don Johannessen, he addressed some 50 senior citizens at Hampton Hall.

A Liberal government would ask only that a person pay $30 a year for his drugs. Anything beyond that would be paid for by the government, Mr. Lindholm said.

PARKLAND LOST Mr. Johannessen accused the government of selling or giving away about 2,000,000 acres of wilderness parkland between 1959 and 1969.

He described it as a tragedy transcending politics. "It is your parkland and your children's parkland. You should raise your voices in protest," he said.

GRANT COPIED Mr. Tisdalle listed the progress of the government during the past 17 years, said the home owners' grant was being copied by other governments and that the B.C. medical scheme had become the prototype for Canada.

Mr. Lindholm said he is opposed to the home owners' grant and feels it was made necessary only because of the heavy tax-strain already placed on property owners.

He said the Liberals think education and hospital tax money should come from general revenues instead of property taxes.

The old-age pensioners are the "forgotten people" in our society," Mr. Lindholm said. "They are caught in a spiral of inflation."

A Liberal government would increase old-age pensions to match the rise in the cost of living, he said.

Mr. Tisdalle used a list of figures to demonstrate that people were better off in B.C. than elsewhere, and in mentioning Newfoundland, said: "No one lives to get old in Newfoundland — they all move to this province."

HOUSING

Mr. Johannessen said the government had done very little about the need for senior citizens' housing. This brought a reply from Mr. Tisdalle that municipalities, particularly Saanich, weren't providing the land that was needed.

To this Mr. Johannessen said Saanich couldn't do anything about the land because it can't "get a yes or a no" from the highways department about what will be required for the Patricia Bay Highway.

Cox:

Municipal Needs Ignored

Municipalities have been the poor cousins of the provincial government during the whole period of Social Credit rule, Oak Bay Liberal candidate Allan Cox said Friday.

The provincial government, he said, had put strings on the per capita grant; doubled the municipal share of welfare costs; neglected co-operation and information fields, and taken away sources of capital funds.

The former Oak Bay reeve told a meeting at St. Dunstan's Hall, Gordon Head, that municipal affairs had escaped attention during the campaign.

PER CAPITA GRANTS

Mr. Cox said that almost immediately after coming to power the Social Credit government took away from municipalities one third of the sales tax to which they had been entitled by law and a share of the motor-vehicle revenues. Instead they substituted fixed per capita grants.

"The sales tax and motor vehicle fee revenues mushroomed during the ensuing period of years and the per capita grants were increased only at the whim and will of the premier," he said.

Even more shocking, said Mr. Cox, was the fact that when local governments started putting the pressure on the provincial government to solve problems beyond municipal financial capabilities, some portion of the per capita grant would be designated for that purpose.

SAME DOLLARS

"This meant that the municipalities were getting the same number of dollars as they previously enjoyed, but were having strings attached to those revenues so that the provincial government could say it was helping to build roads and provide ambulance services."

"This is a typical piece of Social Credit jugglery," he commented.

Co-operation between government departments and municipalities at the ministerial level had been poor, said Mr. Cox.

"Everyone's been talking about the sad state of the Patricia Bay Highway and what a disgrace it has been the way the government's ignored the road and is now only doing a patchwork job."

REAL DISGRACE

"But the real disgrace in the Patricia Bay Highway situation is that the provincial highway department would not let the municipality of Saanich know where the re-routing of that road was going so that Saanich could properly do its own planning."

Mr. Cox maintained that by embarking on the development of the Peace River Dam and the Columbia River Dams at the same time the province put a fantastic burden on the available capital funds.

As a result the provincial government had loaned the vast bulk of money under its control to B.C. Hydro at low rates.

B.C. HYDRO

"This was fine for B.C. Hydro, but you can imagine the effect it had on municipalities, school boards and hospital boards who should have been able to borrow a substantial part of this money for their own necessary purposes."

'Closest to Our Policies'

Tories Back Socreds To Prevent Socialism

Progressive Conservatives were being told Friday they may hold the key to the success or failure of the Social Credit machine at the polls Aug. 27.

The party's key personnel are urging a solid vote by members for Premier Bennett and his candidates in the belief this may be the one sure way of preventing the election of a New Democratic Party government.

"It would appear to me that the Conservative vote holds the balance of power," said Russ Simpson, of Victoria, former vice-president of B.C.'s Progressive Conservative Party.

"The Conservatives admit they are concerned about the NDP triumph in Manitoba and the possibility that B.C. could be in store for the same kind of vote."

"We want the Conservatives to realize that if they vote NDP or Liberal they are voting against themselves," Mr. Simpson said.

The party, without a single seat provincially or federally, is running only one man in the B.C. election — leader John de Wolf.

'SHOO-IN'

Mr. Simpson feels there are 15,000 PC votes in the Saanich Peninsula and points out that the party came close locally in the last federal election.

"If we would put a solid vote behind Social Credit it would mean a shoo-in, I believe," Mr. Simpson said.

"Unfortunately, when we get into a campaign like this and Conservatives haven't candidates of their own to vote for, they are inclined to forget principles and start looking at personalities."

"This is what happened in Manitoba."

'UNACCEPTABLE'

John S. Davies, president of the Esquimalt-Saanich Progressive Conservative Association, said: "The Social Credit Party espouses doctrines and policies closest to those of the Conservative party. The alternatives are socialism or opportunism, which to me are unacceptable."

Mrs. Vera Ashford, longtime secretary of the same riding association: "I have no alternative but to vote for the Social Credit Party as one which closely resembles the Conservative Party."

Mrs. Helen O'Malia, vice-president of the Esquimalt-Saanich association: "We should definitely urge all our members not to stay home on election day, but to get out and support Social Credit — it is the nearest thing to what we have."

Trade Body Advised

Directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce were told Friday that Wednesday's election will be the most critical the province has faced in many years.

After hearing the chairman of the government affairs committee warn that the issues were vital and that the consequences would have to be lived with for a long time, the directors decided to issue a memorandum to all members before election day.

The memorandum would contain the cautions and suggestions made to the directors by committee chairman David R. Fraser.

URGED TO VOTE

Interest was running high, Mr. Fraser said, but people must still be urged to get out and vote.

Statements made up to this point by candidates had been enthusiastic but often not too practical and it was up to voters to sift the information and issues and arrive at a conclusion, Mr. Fraser said.

It should be considered, Mr. Fraser added that the party elected was going to be in charge of a multi-billion dollar business, so depth of management capability should be considered.

NON PARTISAN

President Clare Copeland emphasized that in matters of politics the chamber was non-partisan.

The fear, however, was that "middle-class" people, too preoccupied with their own affairs, might not turn out and vote.

This happened in Manitoba, Mr. Copeland said.

Too many people believed that the "status-quo" would be maintained whether they turned out or not.

SOME SHOCKED

"But," said Mr. Copeland, "they found out this wasn't true and some were extremely shocked at the result of the election."

Philip D. P. Holmes urged that signs reading simply "Vote Today" be posted in prominent places in the downtown area but the suggestion was discarded in favor of sending a memorandum to each chamber member.

Later Mr. Copeland issued a statement which, in effect, capitalized the comments made by Mr. Fraser.

Inquest Called Monday

A coroner's inquest has been called in the death of Silas Cox 76, of 880 Jassmine, who died after being struck Thursday by a car at Douglas and Kings Road.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said Friday the inquest would be held at Sands Funeral Chapel at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The jury will hear medical evidence only, the coroner said.

Sanscha Hall

Public Meeting Picking Projects for Windfall

With $24,000 in the kitty, directors of Sidney's Sanscha Hall will hold a public meeting Monday night to decide how to spend the money.

The funds are to be paid to Sanscha by the provincial government as compensation for the expropriation of a strip of property to make way for the intersection of Beacon Avenue and the widening of the Patricia Bay highway.

The new scheme will include loss of the present site of the Sidney war memorial, and it is planned to move the cairn to a site in front of the Town Hall.

According to Sanscha president Frank Minns the playing area at Sanscha will not be seriously affected by the loss of property. It will be necessary only to move a baseball backstop and re-design a diamond.

Although the new intersection will come within a few feet of the library, Mr. Minns said loss of the west end of the parking space will be compensated for by extra space in front of the library.

According to the terms of Sanscha Trust, disposal of the money should be decided by a public meeting.

Mr. Minns said he would be glad to receive suggestions for use of the money, and would like to hear about them if possible by letter before Monday's meeting so that legal aspects can be considered by the directors.

Suggestions already made for use of the money include establishment of a skating rink and curling rink on Sanscha property, or purchase of property on Oakville Avenue and Eighth Street to square off the recreational area of Sanscha.

Calling of the meeting for Monday leaves local residents with a triple choice of events.

Also on Monday are an all-candidates' meeting in the Sidney Hotel at 8 p.m. and a council meeting in the Town Hall at 7:30 p.m.

The Missing Body Caper

Everybody Took a Hand in It

By ALLAN ANDERSON

A lot of things happen around a place as big as the Empress Hotel — but one thing didn't happen there Friday. They didn't find a dismembered body in one of the rooms.

For a while, visions of that kind of thing were dancing through the head of assistant manager Donald Wakelin.

Mr. Wakelin called police when he heard the story going around among the cleaning staff that someone had seen a human hand among the day's collection of garbage.

"We don't like to think of anything like that happening in our hotel," he said.

Victoria Det. Joe Barlow was soon on the scene. He questioned Frank Locher, Thomas Webb and Kathleen Fleming. They had passed on the story — but they had not seen the hand.

It had been seen, they said, by Rick Matie, a swamper on a Smithrite Disposal Co. garbage truck.

Out went the word to a patrol car, and the garbage truck was intercepted on Courtney Street.

Matie, 17 years old, said he thought he had seen a human hand in the refuse coming down a chute at the hotel and he had mentioned it to the truck's driver, John Sutton.

"Sure he did," the driver agreed, "but I thought he was just imagining things. Maybe he saw a glove, or part of a mannequin."

However, in matters of this kind there is nothing like making sure, so Det. Barlow, Sgt. Gordon Bennett and Constable Dennis Rutherford trailed the truck to the Hartland Road dump.

There they went through the evidence. They didn't find a hand, or anything that looked like one.

"It's one of those times when no news is good news," police said later.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever you get a problem you can't answer for you say, "See your clergyman." It's an easy way to get off the hook but it doesn't solve anybody's problem.

I quit going to church 11 years ago so I don't know any clergymen. I got sick of the phony who went to church to be seen by other phony. All the clergymen in this town are so busy getting their pictures in the paper that they have no time to talk to people about their troubles. When they aren't posing for pictures they are serving on committees or butting up the rich. The dedicated spiritual leader is a thing of the past. So please stop telling your readers to see their clergyman. Their clergyman is not the least bit interested. — Telling It Like It Is.

Strange 'Authority'

Dear Telling: Strange that a person who hasn't been inside a church for 11 years, and doesn't know any clergymen considers himself an authority on the subject. Hundreds of people have written to tell me they followed my advice and found their clergyman a well-spring of strength and practical guidance.

Your inference that clergymen are self-serving and materialistic is absurd. Those who choose the religious life are not lured to this calling by money because there's precious little in it.

Dear Ann: I have the all-

A Lovelier You

Care of Hands Not Difficult

By MARY SUE MILLER

Everyone agrees that lovely hands are a beauty asset. Naturally, the plus is based on well-tended nails and a smooth hand complexion.

Some women feel that only regular professional manicures maintain perfection. Others, adept at manicuring, swear by home care.

Then there are those who claim that housework is so hard on their hands, beauty care is useless. This contention is misguided of course.

No matter how grimy a chore may be, precautionary care and aftercare fend off an unsightly appearance.

We've said it before and we'll say it again... Work gloves, hand lotion, cuticle cream and weekly manicures are that basis of present-ability. These little tips act as boosters:

- Always trim and shape your nails with an emery board. It's the gentlest of instruments.

- To clean beneath nails without bruising, use a soapy cotton swab.

- Push back cuticles with the blunt end of a wood manicure stick, never with a sharp device.

- Before applying polish, buff nails. This improves their color, sheen and health.

- Cleanse hands at least once daily with a very soft, sudsy brush. Remove stains at once with toilet pumice.

- For flexibility and grace, make a habit of this exercise: Hold hands out from chest, palms down. With fingers spread and pointing straight ahead, rotate each finger from big knuckle to right and then to left. Ten times each direction.

Riveter Rosie Back on Job

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—That millhand decked out in rough work clothes, helmet and goggles at Republic Steel Corporation's Buffalo plant soon could be a girl. Republic, troubled by a shortage of male job applicants and the approaching departure of 300 summer workers returning to college, says it is hiring women production workers for the first time since the Second World War.

Higher Prices Likely

Consumer Paying Parcel Rate Rise?

TORONTO (CP) — Forthcoming increases in parcel post rates will likely mean more price increases for the consumer.

A check of businesses which use parcel post extensively shows that, while it is too early yet to say how much costs might rise, they are at least looking into possible increases to help absorb the higher expense of delivery.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said last week parcel post rates will rise by between 19 and 29 per cent for domestic mail effective Jan. 1, including a minimum charge of 45 cents for any parcel.

Rates now vary according to weight, with a one-pound parcel costing 30 cents. The people happiest with the announcement are operators of private delivery services, who hope to pick up some more business when the new rates come in.

"The rate increase will probably be the thin edge of the wedge to many independent couriers, making it worthwhile for them to deliver addressed mail," says P. J. Powell, marketing manager of Encyclopaedia Britannica Publications Ltd.

"Certainly we'll be looking at independent carriers more seriously than ever before." The Britannica mails 100,000 yearbooks across Canada a year as well as its regular encyclopaedia shipments.

Powell says his company does not charge customers for postage, "but you can only afford certain cost increases without making some attempt either to cut them or to increase revenues."

Hindering the efforts of private delivery services to win new business undoubtedly will be their rates.

Trans-Canadian Couriers Ltd. charges $3.25 to send a one-pound parcel to Montreal from Toronto, compared with the new postal rate of 50 cents.

But L. R. Wilput, Trans-Canadian manager, says it can offer quicker delivery.

Two of the largest users of parcel post, the T. Eaton Co. of Canada Ltd. and Simpsons-Sears Ltd., say they will do about the new rates.

But they add they will probably turn more strongly to alternative methods of distribution, as they did with much of their catalogue mailings after third-class mail rates went up last fall.

M. F. Anderson, operations manager for Simpsons-Sears, says it is inevitable that "the cost of merchandise goes up as expenses increase."

Record clubs, who now charge about 35 cents a record for shipping and handling, say the new rates could mean some increased costs for customers.

But book publishers will still be able to ship under a special book rate, which has been only slightly affected by the new charges.

Wage Boost 7.6 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage settlements in the second quarter of 1969 called for average base-rate increases of 7.6 per cent, the labor department reported Friday.

This represented an increase over the average settlements of the previous two quarters — 7.2 and 7.5 per cent, respectively. But the average settlement in the third quarter of 1968 was 8.5 per cent.

The department said labor contracts covering bargaining units of 500 workers and more, in all fields except the construction industry, are covered by its statistical analysis. There were 123 such contracts negotiated in April, May and June, affecting the wage rates of 234,625 workers.

The department said the impact of the 123 new settlements, when taken in conjunction with wage provisions of existing contracts, set the annual base-rate increase at 7.7 per cent, or 17.7 cents an hour, for the 12 months ended June 30, 1969.

This compares with a 6.4 per cent increase, or 13.9 cents an hour, recorded in the 12 months ended June 30, 1968.

Food, Services

U.S. Living Cost Keeps Climbing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. cost of living continued its steady climb in July, increasing five-tenths of one per cent mostly because of higher prices for food and services, the labor department reported Friday.

The labor bureau statistics said consumer prices have risen 3.6 per cent so far this year, for a seasonally adjusted annual rate of more than 6 per cent. This is the highest annual rate in the first seven months of a year since the North Korean War of 1951.

But the bureau also reported that an increase in the take-home pay of rank-and-file workers matched the July price increases to leave their actual purchasing power about the same.

Gross average weekly earnings of these workers were up 68 cents to $115.44 as a result of an increase in the work week and a one-cent rise in average hourly earnings.

The price increases for July added to gloomy news from the commerce department, which has just surveyed the business scene and found more inflation just about everywhere it looked.

The two reports were not encouraging news to the Nixon administration, which has vowed to curb inflation.

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA (Special) — Would you believe quiet, old, dignified Ottawa has Canada's minis highest of all on Parliament Hill?

Then take it on the word of television producer Geoff Scott.

He has taken some TV film of miniskirts prancing prettily out of the Centre Block on the lunch parade to the West Block cafeteria across the Hill, and finds at least one half of the footage "too hot to handle" — at least, he says, for the "family trade" on the evening dinner news.

He was doing a TV news special for a London, Ont., station whose manager had heard of this eye-bugging feature of the national capital and wanted some research-on-film done.

Five other stations, as far apart as Vancouver and Halifax, hearing on the TV industry grapevine of the sensational footage, have ordered it for their archives, if not necessarily for public viewing.

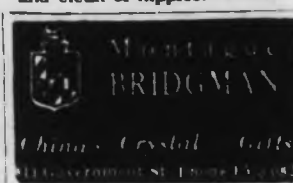

The change of Hill scene seems to have coincided with the change in prime ministers from grandfather Lester Pearson to bachelor Pierre Trudeau.

For it wasn't more than a couple of years ago that a girl in the most decorously-fashioned shorts couldn't get past the Centre Block's front door unless she concealed her shape in skirts — of below-the-knee length — supplied by the blushing guards who kept a rack of them handy for just such purposes as camouflage.

Now in the new and swinging spirit of the Hill, just about the only taboo in exposure is feet.

Ralph Tells World Ontario Study Team And ETTY Blushes

GLASGOW (AP) — On the side of an office block high above Glasgow's teeming streets, the 10-foot-by-seven-foot poster shows two hearts with an arrow through them and says: "Ralph loves ETTY."

Ralph del Monte, 48, said the poster was his way of telling the world how he feels about his wife after exactly 27 years of married life.

ETTY del Monte just blushed.

"When I saw the poster I was thrilled to bits," she said. "Ralph loves ETTY" up all kinds of things like this but he's never done it so publicly before. He really is a marvelous man."

Ralph's gesture didn't cost him a penny. The poster company declined payment.

Family Court Urged

TORONTO (CP) — After four years of research for the Ontario law reform commission, a study team recommended Friday that a unified family court system be established to deal with all aspects of family life.

The system would have exclusive jurisdiction over divorce, custody of children, juvenile delinquency, neglected children, adoptions, care of children of unwed mothers, enforcement of maintenance obligations and such family criminal matters as assault by one spouse on another.

The main purpose of such a system would be to avoid "the frustrating and inefficient process of referring people from one department or institution to another," said Prof. Ian Baxter, 54, of the University of Toronto law faculty, who headed the study.

Prof. Baxter said in an interview all matters dealing with family life should be "brought under one judicial roof" to provide specialized treatment not available in existing court systems.

The recommendations are contained in the final five volumes of a 13-volume family law project done by the commission, a government-appointed body headed by Allen Leal of Osgoode Hall law schools.

The report said the new court system would use two levels of judges and would be served by specially-qualified judicial, legal and social personnel required to take continuing education from a course made available in at least one Ontario university.

Senior judge would have power to try family law cases now in the jurisdiction of the Ontario High Court judges, including divorce action. A senior official also should be ex officio guardian of every infant in the province so that there would always be someone responsible for the welfare of children.

Court sittings should be held during evening hours and on Saturdays, the report said.

There should be a follow-up procedure to ensure that a child's best interests are being protected when custody has been awarded, and all matters of custody should be determined on the basis of the child's welfare.

New methods should be used to enforce the mutual obligation of husband and wife to support each other and their dependent children.

Unwed mothers are urged by the report to take lump-sum payments from the father instead of periodic payments. The report said there is less risk of not getting paid with this method.

The report suggested the new court pay wives support money owed by missing husbands, then try to recover from the husbands. As a result, divorced, deserted and separated wives would not have to pursue their husbands through the courts.

Poll Belittles Pornography

CHICAGO (AP) — Most psychiatrists and psychologists who participated in a University of Chicago poll said they found no cases in which exposure to pornography caused anti-social sexual behavior.

Results of the poll were announced Friday. Findings were based on questionnaires filled out by more than 3,400 professionals in the mental health field.

Pornography was defined as photographs, drawings or printed material with no pretense of artistic value which depict sexual acts.

Anti-social behavior was defined as actions which violate the rights or privacy of another and are sexual in nature. Rape is an example.

Soviet 'Spy' Traded for 11 Westerners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—Yuri Loginov, a suspected Soviet espionage agent arrested in South Africa two years ago, has been exchanged for 11 western agents, reliable sources said Friday.

The sources said 10 of the westerners are West Germans who had been in Russian captivity. The nationality of the 11th was not certain, but was believed to be American, the sources said.

The swap is believed to have taken place in Berlin last month after close co-operation between South Africa and West Germany, the sources said.

South African security branch chief Brig. P. J. Venter refused comment on the report, saying: "I cannot tell you anything. If you want a story you will have to wait until we decided to make a statement."

Asked when this statement was expected, he said: "After 5:30 on the first Saturday from now." He did not elaborate.

The sources did not specify who the westerners were who were released by the Soviet Union. But they said the U.S.S.R. appeared to be willing to exchange a large number of agents to learn just what damage Loginov's arrest had done to their espionage network.

Loginov was taken into custody after security men in Johannesburg watched him take pictures of a building formerly housing the local branch of South Africa's security police.

Later Loginov—who had been posing as a Canadian of Lithuanian descent and using the name Edmundas Trinka—sang like a canary during interrogation, according to the then head of security police, Hendrik van den Bergh.

He told newsmen Loginov had confessed to being attached to the Soviet intelligence service and disclosed contacts which involved 23 countries in five continents.

His interrogators had described him as a "highly trained professional and an extremely intelligent person."

The sources said questioning during the term of his confinement—Loginov was never charged and never made a court appearance—had disclosed details of spy operations elsewhere in Africa, Europe and the Middle East.

The sources added the Soviet Union had decided to make the swap rather than risk the loss of still more agents through Loginov's statements.

UXBRIDGE, England — Mrs. Margit Barar, 53, died for want of a penny in postage and a coroner's jury has called it an accident but urged doctors to use first-class mail for urgent instructions.
Mrs. Barar had a blood clot in one leg and hospital doctors sent her home after treatment, with a supply of pills and instructions to keep taking them until she received a postcard order to change.
The doctors later sent a postcard telling her to stop taking the pills for three days, then start a reduced dosage. But they used a four-penny stamp when a five-penny one is needed, and Mrs. Barar was dying when the postcard arrived four days later.

LONDON — British actor Robert Morley, a 300-pounder, stopped filming of a cavalry charge when his overburdened horse kept sinking deeper into a muddy field. Leading the charge as the Earl of Manchester, he finally made it after a wooden runway, covered with mud, was built for the horse.

Tate Tests Secret

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Authorities refused Friday to disclose the results of toxicological tests on actress Sharon Tate and four others slaughtered with her at her Benedict Canyon estate.

The coroner's office acknowledged the tests, to show whether any of the victims were under the influence of alcohol or drugs at the time they were slain, have been completed but said it was not authorized to disclose the results.

Police said the results would not be made public because of the continuing search of the killer or killers of the pregnant actress, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, hair stylist Jay Sebring, Polish writer Voltyck, Frakowsky and Steven Parent, a young friend of the estate's caretaker.

Police have confirmed narcotics were found at the estate.

Finance Formula Sparks New Ills

By BILL STAVDAL
Second of a Series

Eighteen months ago the provincial government announced a new public education finance formula intended to cure a variety of ills in the school system.

The results are starting to come in now. The new formula has more or less achieved the things it was intended to do — and it has created a whole new set of problems.

One thing the formula was designed to do was equalize educational opportunity among B.C.'s 85 school districts.

But while the new system is already pulling up school districts that were previously substandard, its averaging effect is pulling down "light-house" districts which used to spend more than the average.

The instrument of this classroom homogenization is the referendum on school district operating funds. It loads the odds against a school board which seeks to raise tax money above a government-imposed limit.

Referendum Unites Teachers, Trustees

It's rare that teachers and school trustees agree on anything in B.C. On the issue of the referendum for operating funds, they are united.

They say it's phony democracy, a gun pointed at education with the trigger in the hands of those who put property values before educational values.

Until the legislative session of 1968, B.C.'s basic education program was a jigsaw puzzle of teacher qualifications and the number of "entitled teachers" per district.

Calculating a school district's basic education program, the department of education allocated an amount for teachers' salaries, a supervision allowance, a further amount per "entitled teacher," plus other sums according to schedules approved by the cabinet.

To raise the basic education program funds there was (and still is) a standard mill rate levied against all real property. It is set by the government and varies from year to year.

The government guaranteed to pay not less than half of "approved" costs under the basic education program.

That word "approved" remains the key term in all discussions of B.C. public education finance. Many school districts found themselves paying more than 50 per cent of their annual budget because their expenses weren't "approved."

Old Formula Intent Aimed at Equality

The old formula was intended to provide both equality of educational opportunity and freedom for a district to innovate and spend more on better education.

However, government grants fell further and further behind actual expenditures. Instead of being revised yearly, the per-teacher grant was left static for years at a time.

Mill rates tended to vary widely across the province. Leslie Peterson, then minister of education, dropped a hint of things to come when he warned the B.C. School Trustees' Association in October, 1967:

"All of us are... deeply concerned about the alarming increases in the cost of providing (education) and the demands being made on the taxpayer to provide more and more public funds for education."

He added: "Unless a courageous attempt is made to sort out the essential tasks in education, I can see this growing financial burden becoming an increasing cause of dissatisfaction and resentment."

However, there was no consultation with non-governmental educators before the 1968 Throne Speech announced "proposals to strengthen the financial viability" of school boards.

That was Bill 86, the amendments to the Public Schools Act which created a new finance formula.

Instructional Unit In Basic Change

The means of calculating the government's new basic education program became the "instructional unit" of 30 elementary pupils or 20 high school students.

The value of the instructional unit changes each year. It is calculated each fall by dividing the total government-approved operating expenditures in all school districts that year by the number of instructional units in the immediately preceding school year.

A school district's basic education program for the coming year is the provincial instructional unit value multiplied by the number of instructional units in the district at the time, plus the cost of approved auxiliary services.

One provision of Bill 86 was that the value of the basic education program would be not less than 90 per cent (later amended to 95 per cent) of approved expenditures of the previous calendar year.

The local share of the basic education program is still raised by a province-wide foundation mill rate set by the government — 24.6 mills this year. The government pays the difference between the amount raised by the foundation mill rate and the basic education program.

This is where the equalization element comes in strongly. A small community with a pulp mill, for example, may raise all the money it needs from its basic mill rate, and receive nothing in government grants.

Another area with a low taxable assessment will have most of its basic education program paid by the government.

As soon as the legislation was announced, attention focussed on its provisions governing local initiative.

A school board is free to raise additional money by local taxation up to 110 per cent of the basic education program.

Above that level there are checks and controls, and this is where the criticism has been concentrated.

To go above the 110 per cent level, a school board must get the approval of a majority of municipal councils within the district, or pass a bylaw, or seek approval of the cabinet.

If the board chooses the bylaw route, then 100 property-owners or 5 per cent of property-owners can petition for a referendum.

Last spring 45 of 81 school districts found themselves over the 110 per cent limit.

Tax Authority Plan Just Didn't Work

Mr. Peterson had said that "school boards will become taxing authorities in their own right," but here's what happened in Nanaimo:

The school board's budget was rejected by city council. The trustees went back to their board room, trimmed their budget and resubmitted it to city council. This time it was approved.

Nine school board budgets went to referendum. A shudder went through the B.C. School Trustees' Association, and the B.C. Teachers' Federation, when the votes were counted.

Seven of the nine referendums were defeated.

In each case the department of education sent its financial specialists to advise on how to trim the budgets, and made special grants in some cases. (The new formula gives immense discretionary power to the government.)

Boards whose referendums had failed were allowed to borrow about one-third of the money they required for the balance of 1969.

James Campbell, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, termed the expedient "both immoral and poor business practice."

He went on: "It is rather strange that the boards are being advised to retain services which are visible and popular, like music programs and town bus routes, while they are being advised to cut other services that the public cannot see, like maintenance and janitorial services."

Principle Offensive To Most Concerned

The fiercest critics of the new education finance formula admit readily that there is much to recommend it. It's an improvement over the old one.

But the referendum principle is offensive to the entire education community. Opposition to the government's education policy focuses almost entirely on the referendum principle.

What's the point of electing school trustees, if they aren't to be trusted to strike a budget? Is a question often asked. Trustees are given the responsibility for the job, but not the authority.

The referendum is particularly insidious under the new finance formula.

Alberta Minister Opposes System

Robert Clark, Alberta's education minister, was asked his opinion of B.C.'s supplementary referendums at a meeting with students Aug. 6 at the University of Calgary.

He said he opposed the system, adding that it meant different treatment for school boards and municipal governments.

"We trust local governments with their spending money," he said, "but we don't treat school boards differently."

Though the legislation was passed 18 months ago, the new formula came fully into effect only this year. The first authoritative study of the system in 1969 has just been published by the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

Varying Conditions Cited in Analysis

The ECSTA analysis repeats the argument that averaging costs and grants can't be properly done in a province which has so many varying conditions.

Per-pupil operating costs this year range from $1,065 in Vancouver Island West, to a low of $473 in Armstrong. The average is $634, with Greater Victoria spending $537, Sooke $530 and Saanich $566.

Conclusion of the trustees' budget analysis:

"In general, the budget study substantiates the association's earlier claim that any just formula for sharing the cost of education cannot be based on average costs without creating economic hardship for a large number of school districts."

"Each year school districts with higher-than-average costs run the risk of having their budgets defeated in referendums."

"The extent of the instability created by the present formula is evident by the fact that there are 45 school districts with operating costs per unit in excess of $13,620, representing 110 per cent of the approximate value of an instructional unit."

"Unless the formula is amended to give recognition to special cost factors, it can be safely assumed that most of these school districts, if not all, will be again in the same situation next year."

Anglican Tentmakers

Moonlighting Clergy Backed by Primate

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The head of the Anglican Church of Canada predicts an increase in the tent-making ministry—clergy who supplement their salaries with outside work.

A man will minister to a congregation but support himself by a secular occupation. Most Rev. Howard H. Clark said Friday. St. Paul did that when he supported himself on his travels by making tents.

The primate said encouraging a minister to have a second occupation is kinder than putting him in a parish that can't support him.

RURAL PARISHES

He commented at a news conference on ways of improving clergyman's salaries, especially in rural parishes of decreasing population.

Earlier, in presenting the report of an inquiry into the church as employer, he told the Anglican General Synod that Christian ministry is in trouble.

Many are leaving the ministry, he said. Others cling to it, but they no longer can exercise it in the parish ministry. Instead, they turn to new experiments that are difficult to relate to the institutional church.

CLERGY FORGOTTEN

The report says in part: "Too often the church has forgotten its more human role as an employer of men and women."

Increasingly the minister finds that the traditional amateur talents do not serve.

"He has always claimed membership in the professional community, but what is his profession? Is he an administrator, a teacher, a social worker, a preacher, a fund raiser, a psychiatrist, a counsellor, a public relations man, or what?"

It is likely that his parish includes men more competent than he in some or all of these fields."

Disciples Reject Manifesto

SEATTLE (AP) — The Black Manifesto, which calls for $500,000,000 from churches in reparations to the black community, has been rejected by the general assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

The assembly turned down a proposal of an activist bloc and approved the resolution by the church's general board. Action on the black manifesto came without the presence of its author, James Forman of New York, whose appearance had been expected.

The manifesto, a product of the black economic development conference, is demanding $500,000,000 in reparations from American churches and synagogues.

Vatican's Daily Blushes News

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Saying it "blushed" in doing so, the Vatican's daily newspaper took the unprecedented step Friday of printing sexy lyrics of a song banned by the Italian radio.

"One should blush in quoting lines of this kind," L'Osservatore Romano said about the controversial French song Je t'Aime... Moi Non Plus (I Love you... Me Neither).

"But the reader must know to be able to judge."

An editorial in the said daily denounced the Italian press for giving too much space to the controversy surrounding the song, the hottest-selling record in Italy.

But L'Osservatore, 80 per cent of whose readership comprises priests, nuns and bishops, went even the most liberal Italian paper one better by actually quoting seven lines from the lyrics. They all were explicit references to the sex act.

The song—a duet by British singer Jane Birkin and Frenchman Serge Gainsbourg—has been a best seller in Italy for weeks.

'Railroading Blunts Attack Against Racism'

CANTERBURY, England (UPI) — Black American and liberal church leaders Friday said the thrust of the World Council of Churches action program against racism was blunted by lack of understanding and railroaded amendments.

The Ecumenical Fellowship's policy-making central committee Thursday night approved a compromise program to combat racism for its 241 member denominations. The program urged churches to make land available free or at low cost to racially oppressed groups and called for churches to confess they have perpetuated racism.

In final form it considerably toned down the original statement on racial relations and dropped altogether the issue of churches disclosing their financial practices.

Life Casual Mystery to Artist

Gum-Wrapper Philosophy

By DON GAIN

Life is essentially a mystery to Victoria artist Gordon Rice, who says his philosophy is "just a bunch of stuff I picked up on my way, like gum wrappers."

It may sound flippant at first listen but it makes a surprising amount of sense.

"I feel that as much as possible it's good to make a philosophy out of your own discoveries," Mr. Rice said.

"It's important as a painter to be very honest," he added.

"It's very difficult because life is so confusing."

Paintings are a statement of life, the artist believes.

"Looking at them, the viewer should realize that the painting is not just something to be quickly categorized and then rejected. It should be considered and thought about."

Otherwise it's just a "outfit job."

The artist says he feels that philosophies or religions make more sense to one person than another.

"I have a personal philosophy. I feel that life is essentially a mystery. It would be true to say that I am very interested in Buddhism and have been for a long time."

The artist's philosophy seems to work very well. He's living where he wants to and doing what he wants to.

"We'd like to stay here indefinitely," he said. "It's isolated, peaceful. The people are both friendly and reserved. They are there when you need them, but they respect your privacy and give you time to work."

Th Rice — wife Esther, who

Is a dietitian at St. Joseph's Hospital; Josefa, 6, and Constance, 5, came here from Los Angeles last year.

The City of the Angels is the artist's birthplace. He studied art there and at the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

He won his master's degree at the University of Hawaii and has a BA in anthropology from Berkeley.

He's got some basic things to say about his work.

"One has to be the judge of one's own work. One has to do one's own work. This may seem too simple to talk about but thinking of it has helped me tremendously. I follow my own course."

"What is important to you personally may be not so much what is important to artists generally. I want to do a personal kind of painting."

Asked about his style of painting, the artist says he plays over a great range of styles.

"As long as you are your own judge, you can make your own rules. I want a lot of freedom in painting."

He acknowledges the influence of the French Impressionists "and a number of modern tendencies."

There are nightscapes, both of foliage and of cities which might remind one of U.S. paintings of the 20s and 30s.

Lately he has been painting interiors, large rooms full of junk, pictures, other objects.

"Painting a room full of pictures comes very close to collage," he says.

The interiors are leading to another style, something more plastic, where "things start to tilt and curve and bend," the artist says.

He's done some interesting cityscapes, full of commercial establishments, telephone poles and signs.

"It's not pop art," he says. "It's more romantic or atmospheric. In a way I've been walking back and forth over various categories."

"All the pictures I looked at in magazines as a kid had an influence on my painting," the artist says.

"Then there's Matisse, Arshile Gorky, the late American painter, Cyril Japanese and Chinese painting and prints."

"And the older U.S. painters of the Hudson River School. Those are sources. That's real stuff. And J. M. W. Turner."

Cathedral

Two Offer Organ Recitals

Two organ recitals have been planned for Christ Church Cathedral — one at 12:15 p.m. today and one at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Today's recital will be given by Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster of the cathedral, who has just returned from a trip to England.

Wednesday's recital will be given by Gillian Weir, Miss Weir who has been studying in England and will soon be living in Canada, has established an international reputation as a leading organ virtuoso.

The New Zealand-born organist is giving her recital as part of the 1969 Diamond Jubilee Convention of the Royal Canadian College of Organists.

The cathedral is being enlarged with a three-rank pedal mixture and a four-foot choral bass, gifts of an anonymous donor. The additions should be completed in time for Miss Weir's concert.

Youths Use Savings For Mormon Stint

Eight Mormon elders and two Mormon sisters have arrived in Victoria to do missionary work. The young people belong to a band of approximately 12,000 missionaries who each year go to all parts of the world to spread the gospel according to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

The young men and women, aged from 19 to 25, save up enough money to pay for their time away from home before they even leave.

For many it is several years of work followed by two to 2½ years of missionary work.

According to Mrs. Joyce Stratton of Victoria, it will cost each of the 10 young people here about $3,000.

"And yet," she added, "When they are released to go home, they usually say it's been the best two years of their lives and many ask for extensions."

What is it that makes these youths give so much?

According to Mrs. Stratton, a member of the Victoria church, it is the special message the missionaries have.

DOORBELLS RING

They go about the streets of Greater Victoria in pairs ringing doorbells. When they are asked into a home they tell the story of Joseph Smith, who, the Mormons believe, was a prophet of God.

Mrs. Stratton told the story: "In 1820 Joseph Smith was a young man living in the state of New York.

"He wanted to join a church but as he visited those in his neighborhood he found confusion because there were so many. He decided to pray and ask God which of the churches was right."

GROVE OF TREES

"He went to a grove of trees near his father's farm and knelt in prayer. As he was praying he saw a pillar of light exactly over his head, above the brightness of the sun, which descended gradually until it fell upon him.

"Then he saw, standing above him in the air, two personages in the form of men, whose brightness and glory defied all description.

"One of them called Joseph Smith by name and said, pointing to the other, 'This is my Beloved Son, hear Him.'"

LIFE CHANGED

"The visit of the Father and the Son changed Joseph's life, as well as millions of Mormons since. Joseph was commanded not to join any church but to restore the Church of Jesus Christ, in the exact pattern of the new New Testament Church, if he lived worthily.

"After 10 years of being proven, he was instructed by revelation from the Lord and restored the Church of Jesus Christ to this earth, with the same power and authority that was here in ancient times."

VICTORIA CHURCH

"This is the message these young people bring. This and the story of the origin of the Book of Mormon which deals with God's teachings to the people in the Americas at the same time the Bible was being compiled by the prophets in the Old World."

The Mormon Church in Victoria, on Quadra Street, has a membership of about 1,000.

Convent Rules Relaxed

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican Thursday relaxed some of its rules governing nuns. Those who go outside their cloistered convents without permission no longer commit a mortal sin.

Also suspended is the old rule by which laymen could be excommunicated for entering cloistered convents. The superior may now allow nuns to leave the convent for special work after asking the authorization of the local bishop.

About TV

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's fainthearted answer—Canada's Group of Seven painters included, alphabetically, Frank Carmichael, Lauren Harris, A. Y. Jackson, Frank Johnston, Arthur Lismer, J. E. H. MacDonald and F. H. Varley. Of course I had to look it up.

Today's question starts a new movie word game. Many movies share a word as the first in their title, so I'll provide word and an easy clue and you name the movie. If King is the word and gorilla the clue—King Kong. Identify these other King movies—1. African gems, 2. Reagan loses his legs, 3. PoWs. Answers Tuesday.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

One of the seven deadly sins of rubber bridge is to jeopardize the contract in an attempt to make overtricks.

South thought he was on route to several overtricks in this deal but because he ignored a card from safety play he ended up with a minus score.

South was on the diamonds and West opened the diamond queen.

taken by the ace. The clarifier could count on only four quick tricks in the side suits but he dealt that there was every likelihood of eight more via a straight crossruff.

Accordingly he took the club ace and ruffed a club. Then he took the pade ace and ruffed
a spade.

Another club from the table was ruffed with the eight of hearts
but this time West overtricked and East ruffed dummy's king and exited with a trump. South could make no more than nine tricks.

After winning the first five tricks (with the diamond ace, club ace, club ruff, spade ace and spade ruff) South could have clinched his contract by continuing with a high crossruff. He ruffs two clubs with the A-K of trump and two spades with the Q-J of trump, bringing his tally to nine tricks.

To get the tenth trick, declarer simply ruffs dummy's last club with the new-singleton eight of trump. If this is overtricked, dummy's nine of trump must with a trick.

As a matter of fact, after taking the first five tricks declarer can try (unsuccessfully) for an overtrick by attempting to cash the diamond king. If this is ruffed and a trump is returned, declarer still has ten tricks.

Sacred Muscling Charged

'Business Body Gutless'

By DON COLLINS

Ray Haynes, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, told a group of unionists today that a New Democratic Party victory Aug. 27 would "put some backbone into the gutless body of the business community in British Columbia."

In a speech prepared for morning delivery at the 10th annual meeting in Nelson of Local 1-405, International Woodworkers of America, Mr. Haynes says:

"For the past 17 years the business people in this province have allowed themselves to be intimidated by the premier, Mr. Bennett."

For 17 years the bagmen for the Social Credit Party have been able to dictate to the business community the amount of the assessment levied against it under the pretext that Mr. Bennett was the only one who keeps the so-called socialists out of political office."

'COMPLETE MERCY'

By yielding to this the businessmen place themselves at the "complete mercy of Bennett and company," Mr. Haynes says.

Those receiving favors have been treated with contempt he charges.

He finds it interesting that people should complain that the labor movement, in open convention and under public scrutiny contributed "nickels and dimes" to support the party of its choice.

"It is the hidden campaign funds that produce the sinister element in Canadian politics," he says in his speech.

SWEDISH SYSTEM

He notes that the B.C. government had commissioned a study of the Swedish industrial system in an attempt to ascertain the reason for 35 years of labor peace.

"Anyone studying the Swedish system finds that the election of a Social Democratic government in 1933 and removal of government intervention in the field of collective bargaining were the major factors," he says.

To this, he adds: "The election of a New Democratic Party government on Aug. 27 will produce a similar climate in B.C."

Typhoon Rips Industrial Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Typhoon Cora ripped through Japan's industrial heartland today with torrential rains and 70-mile-an-hour winds that splintered houses and disrupted rail and air traffic between the nation's major cities.

Police listed three persons dead and at least 96 injured.

The typhoon, born a week ago in the Western Pacific east of Guam, swept across the major industrial cities of Tokyo and Nagoya after causing wide destruction in the southern islands of Kyushu and Shikoku.

Tokyo metropolitan police headquarters mobilized 37,000 officers on typhoon alert while sheets of rain driven by 70-mile-an-hour winds cut visibility to less than a block.

Police and emergency workers built up sandbag dikes along 14 Tokyo rivers. Street lights were turned on at mid-day so motorists could find their way.

Election

'Names' Offer Late Push

With election candidates getting in their last licks before Wednesday's election, the NDP will bring their big names into Victoria Sunday and Monday to support local candidates.

Former provincial party leader Bob Strachan will be chairman of a Sunday rally at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay junior high school for leader Tom Berger and welfare spokesman David Barrett.

On Monday, national leader Tommy Douglas will be in Victoria to assist Victoria candidates Peter Bunn and Phil Fawcett and Oak Bay candidate Jack McKenzie.

He will visit Kiwanis Village in the afternoon, having tea with the people there.

At noon Mr. Douglas will be in Centennial Square, ready to talk to all comers, and at 7:30 p.m. he will meet campaign workers at the constituency headquarters at 1018 Blanshard.

About 400 more voters in Victoria cast ballots Friday in the second day of advance polls.

The total for the first two days reached about 850, only 250 votes less than the three-day total from the last election.

Polls will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. today at the First United Church Fellowship Hall, 934 Balmoral; the Anglican Church Hall in Sidney and the Port Renfrew Community Hall.

"Happiness is a state of mind," W. A. Scott, Victoria independent candidate in the forthcoming provincial election, told a group of about 30 teenagers in Centennial Square Friday afternoon.

Mr. Scott, self-appointed "Voice of Youth" in the election, told of his idea for an intellectual Olympic games to provide an outlet for "civilized nationalism."

Asked what he would do for British Columbia if elected, he said, "I can only say this. I realize my limitations . . . and if the youth came to me with their problems I'd try to help them . . . And don't forget, boys and girls, education means physical education, too."

More than 100 NDP election signs from Cordova Bay to Sidney have been uprooted and damaged in a methodical wave of destruction, Saanich-Islands NDP candidate Don Johansson said Friday.

He offered a $100 reward for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the sign smashers.

"This is not the work of children," he said. "Only the NDP signs are being affected, and they are being knocked down as fast as we can put them up again."

Waldo Skillings said "no" Friday to the physical fitness challenge issued by Victoria riding's independent candidate William Scott.

Mr. Scott invited all candidates for Victoria riding to meet him at the Crystal Garden Saturday noon for a jogging, calisthenics and swimming competition.

Scott said the Liberals and the NDP have accepted his challenge.

Queen's Scouts Plan Reunion

Former King's and Queen's Scouts in Victoria will hold their first reunion from 8 to 10:30 p.m. Sept. 25 at the Red Lion Motor Inn.

The aim of the reunion is to provide an opportunity for Scouts to meet former companions in hikes, camps and other Scouting activities, according to Wilf Gibson, past president of the Greater Victoria Region.

Cosmos 295

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union sent another unmanned earth satellite, Cosmos 295, into orbit. The satellite was circling the earth once every 95 minutes at heights from 174 to 310 miles at an angle of 71 degrees to the equator, Tass news agency said.

The next time some personnel manager says you're too old,

Fight back.

You can, you know.

Pity is,
Too many folks accept discrimination.
Too many expect their age or sex to lose them job opportunities and fair pay.
Too many expect their ancestry or skin colour to deny them common privileges and decent consideration.

It's time to fight back.

In British Columbia, you have rights.
And your government protects those rights.

In June, 1969, the Province of British

Columbia proclaimed The Human Rights Act for the promotion and protection of the fundamental rights of every individual in this province.

The Act makes it unlawful to:

Discriminate in hiring, continuing employment, membership in a trade union, because of race, religion, sex, colour, nationality, ancestry, place of origin, or because of age if between 45 and 65.

Discriminate in seeking or advertising for employees.

Discriminate in renting or selling houses

or commercial property.

Discriminate in providing accommodation, services, or facilities where the public is customarily admitted.

Discriminate by paying women lower wages than men for substantially the same work, done in the same establishment.

Leslie Peterson introduced this much-needed legislation because, as Minister of Labour, he saw it his duty to make sure every British Columbian gets a fair shake.

The Act has teeth. Now that it is passed, the provincial government has appointed a Human Rights Director to handle complaints, and a Human Rights Commission to enforce the Act and deal with offenders.

If you'd like to know more about Human Rights in British Columbia or if you have a complaint, Les Peterson wants to hear from you. Write him through The Director, Human Rights Branch, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., and help us keep British Columbia free of discrimination.

'I Need
Ney'—
Bennett

By IAN STREET

NANAIMO — Premier Bennett called on an overflow crowd here Friday night to "join in the rising tide of support for Social Credit," and elect all four government candidates in northern Vancouver Island ridings Aug. 27.

He made the appeal to an audience of 678 who packed a downtown theatre and a handful who listened to his 40-minute speech over a public address system in a nearby hall.

Despite the good turnout, however, the Socred end of this city's triple attraction for the evening which was billed as "Bennett, Berger, and Bingo" turned out to be a pretty tame affair. The audience included many brought in from other parts of the Island and a few from Powell River and there were only a few scattered boys and no heckling during the speeches.

BINGO BIGGER

The biggest crowd of the evening was at bingo in the civic arena which offered prizes worth $25,000 for the last game.

At the Socred rally, Mr. Bennett made a strong pitch for the election next Wednesday of government candidates Frank Ney in Nanaimo, Dan Campbell in Comox, Dr. Howard McDiarmid in Alberni, and Dr. Charles Ennis in Cowichan-Malahat. All were present and spoke briefly.

Because the government is the province, the premier said, it needs men of experience and administrative ability. He hinted at the many benefits which would come to this community if Mayor Nev was returned as the local M.L.A. rather than incumbent Dave Stupich, the New Democrat seeking re-election for a third term.

PROMISE HOLDS

The premier said his promise to improve ferry and highway links to the north island would be carried out in 1970 regardless of local results provided that Social Credit won the election. But he urged voters to show their appreciation of the government's help. He added: "If you help us, we'll help you."

Mr. Bennett told the rally that while other governments were being forced to cut back their services this province was in such good financial shape that B.C. would continue to grow under Social Credit.

"With the help of Frank Nev we will help the city of Nanaimo expand and grow. Your mayor would have to

By CLEMENT CHAPLE

NANAIMO — NDP leader Tom Berger drew cheers here Friday night when he said in a packed school gymnasium that an NDP government will go into the auto insurance business and cut premiums by 30 per cent.

Mr. Berger told about 600 people in the Quennell school gymnasium that car insurance companies "say they're all losing money — let's find out."

"We believe that the government plans will be 30 per cent lower" in premium rates than current rates of the 188 insurance companies in B.C.

UNJUST, COSTLY
Mr. Berger said the government legislation making it compulsory to buy car insurance from private companies is unjust, expensive and unfair.

The NDP leader referred to the Wootton Royal Commission which he said had established as fact that insurance companies were charging exorbitant premiums and providing inadequate coverage.

"We don't believe that you should be forced to buy from these companies," Mr. Berger said. He said the motorist should be forced to buy from private companies or from a government plan.

PRAISE QUOTED
With national NDP leader Tommy Douglas seated beside him, Mr. Berger said the auto insurance plan introduced by the former Saskatchewan premier has been praised by "Consumers' Report" and that well-known NDP publication, the Wall Street Journal.

"If it's good enough for the Wall Street Journal, it's good enough for me," Mr. Berger said.

Mr. Berger's announcement drew several outbursts of cheers and applause from the apparently all-NDP meeting.

At U.S. Union Rule

By PETER KIERNAN

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer Friday night promised a Liberal government would wipe out the British Columbia legislation under which Canadian unions could be the object of discrimination.

He told a news conference that American domination of unions was "a threat to our sovereignty" and added that he would see to it that Canadian unions were given equal rights.

'DISTURBED'

"I am deeply disturbed by the degree of domination of labor unions by Americans. . . I am anxious that Canadian unions be allowed full participation," Dr. McGeer said.

He said that of 2,000,000 card-carrying union members in Canada, 70 per cent were in American-dominated unions. Between 1962 and 1968 $180,000,000 from Canadian unionists went into the coffers of U.S.-based organizations and only $130,000,000 came back to this country, he said.

"It is obvious that some U.S. unions are benefitting from Canadian contributions."

Dr. McGeer said a Liberal government would "take a long, hard look" at any arrangements under which union funds found their way from Canada to the U.S.

"No laws will exist that work to the disadvantage of Canadian unions," he said, citing what he termed "sweetheart agreements" in which a pact between business and unions could keep outside unions off the job.

"I want to make it clear that we are not anti-union, but pro Canadian union," he said.

The news conference was the Liberal leader's first function in Kamloops as he moved his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election into the Interior for the second time.

Unlike the sometimes cool reception he received during a three-day Vancouver Island swing, which ended Thursday, he was greeted here by about 200 chanting, card-carrying supporters.

STRONG CAMPAIGNS
The Liberal candidate, Malcolm Bryson, and NDP candidate Jim Jacobs are both mounting strong campaigns against former highways minister P. A. Gagliardi, now minister without portfolio.

Mr. Bryson told the news conference that Premier Bennett's announcement that Mr. Gagliardi would be returned to the cabinet and given a portfolio, "has been calculated to put a very sharp knife to the throats of voters in this riding."

'Formula Stays'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney General Leslie Peterson, a former education minister, said Thursday the Social Credit government will not scrap the controversial formula governing school financing. It would be changed and adjusted as necessary.

He was speaking to the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

For the second part of Bill Staudal's series on B.C. education, dealing with the formula, see Page 24.

Turned Down by JP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice of the Peace Don Stewart Friday turned down the attempt of a 17-year-old Ontario youth to bring Prime Minister Trudeau to court to face a common assault charge.

Mr. Stewart read a brief written judgment in which he said he found "inconclusive" the evidence of Richard Bruce Jesmer, 17, a laborer from Niagara Falls who claimed he was hit in the face by Trudeau here Aug. 8, and Jesmer's supporting witnesses.

He said he will issue no summons or warrant requiring Trudeau to face the charge in court.

APPEAL POSSIBLE

Jesmer could appeal the decision to a higher court, but he said after the decision was given that he had not made up his mind.

Jesmer had testified under oath Tuesday that during an anti-Vietnam war protest Aug. 8 he called Trudeau "a creep" and "Mr. Trudeau turned and hit me."

Mr. Stewart said he had heard sworn testimony from Jesmer and his witnesses Tuesday. "Because of the notoriety of this incident" he had also heard what he called extraneous evidence—from three police officers who testified Tuesday "as friends of the court."

But even without this extraneous evidence, his judgment said, "the evidence of the informant and his witnesses, although apparently sincere, is inconclusive and when viewed in the light of all the circumstances in which the alleged incident took place, it would be, in my opinion, an abuse of the court's process to proceed further and therefore no summons or warrant will be issued."

Flower Spreaders
Scattered by Tanks

PRAGUE (UPI) — Army tanks and troops broke up an anti-Soviet rally of 5,000 students Friday night in Brno, the Moravian capital where at least three persons have been killed protesting the first anniversary of the Soviet Union's invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia.

While students and soldiers were fighting for the fourth consecutive night in Brno, the government announced an emergency law providing swift punishment for disturbing the "socialist order."

The Brno students were reported spreading flowers through the square in memory of three persons killed there earlier in the week when the military force arrived.

The tanks blocked the major exits and the soldiers surrounded the square, then moved into it forcing the students out through a small street.

Voters' List Major Riddle for Alberni

By PETE LOUDON

PORT ALBERNI — A 43 per cent increase in the voters' list in Alberni electoral district since the 1966 list was compiled is confusing street corner election forecasters here.

By two-way they mean a battle between Dr. Howard McDiarmid, Social Credit, a Tolino physician who won the seat by a comfortable margin (almost 2,000 votes) in 1966, and John Squire, NDP, who sat as an M.L.A. for Alberni between 1952 and 1966. Liberal candidate and political beginner Eugene Romanuk is generally conceded to be out of the running.

However, the vastly increased total of voters may help Romanuk too. A young candidate and a popular one with the younger set, he has geared his campaign to the first-time voters. There must be a lot of them. Either that or here are a lot of dead people on the list. Alberni voters' list in 1963 showed 14,860 eligible voters. This year it shows 21,326. If 73 per cent vote, as happened in 1966, the new wave of voters could throw out any calculations anyone might make on the basis of 1966 returns.

The suggestion that there are many people on the list who now are dead or who have moved away is not far-fetched. It was a reliably learned that the enumeration conducted in this area with its far-flung polls, was so poor that the old list was used as a basis for the new one.

New names collected by enumerators were added, but few names, if any, were deleted. More than one person has already made public complaints about finding a long-dead relative is listed to return to cast a ballot.

Returning officer Tom Johnstone went so far as to announce Wednesday that apparently there are some deceased listed and some situations where people have been listed more than once, in different polls, but the valley need have no fear, a person may only vote once.

His faith in the system isn't shared by a letter writer to the local Alberni Valley Times by Ivan Sharnuk.

He says the voters' list is an unbelievable example of inefficiency or just plain stupidity and he fears it may be used as a reason for a demand by the losing candidates for a new election here.

"Almost every page contains numerous mistakes. Numerous names are duplicated, people dead for years and those who have moved away are still on the list. Many names appear in two or even three polling stations. There could be thousands of names on it that don't belong there."

"For example on Page 660 Cherry Creek polling division, names number 573 and 874

55 Years Ago at Campbell River

War Echoed Over Rally

By HELEN MITCHELL
CAMPBELL RIVER — The provincial election campaign is nearing the end of the road after a whirl of meetings, rallies, coffee parties and house-to-house campaigning.

But, somehow, there doesn't seem to be the same excitement and enthusiasm as was generated 55 years ago this month when the Conservative party held a two-day rally in Campbell River here to honor its successful candidates in both the provincial and federal ridings.

Representing the northern half of Vancouver Island in Ottawa was H. S. Clements, MP. Member of the Legislative Assembly — referred to as "MPPs" in those days — was Mike Manson, who, with his brother, John, came from the Shetland Isles before the turn of the century and settled on Cortes Island in the community eventually named for them.

It was agreed by the committee in charge that the annual celebration be held in Campbell River. There were only about 200 residents in those days but they went all out to make the event one to be remembered.

Banners were hung in the town offering a "welcome to our representatives, Clements and Manson." The Willows Hotel was the social centre of the community at the time and it had banners, garlands and festoons inside and out for the great occasion.

AUGUST RALLY
The rally was held on Aug. 4 and Aug. 5. Of course, when the committee was planning the affair they had no foreknowledge that the Archduke Ferdinand would get himself assassinated in Sarajevo by a bullet that fired the opening gun of the worst conflict that the world had seen to that date.

However, by the time the rally got under way word had filtered through to Campbell River that war had been declared against Germany, and the whole affair became imbued with an extra surge of patriotism.

Premier Sets Fast Pace Along Campaign Trail

By JIM RYAN

PORT ALBERNI — A photographer needs fast footwork to keep up with Premier Bennett on the election campaign trail.

The premier paid an early-afternoon visit here Friday to meet with and talk to the people in the riding of Soledad. Dr. Howard McDiarmid's riding — and enjoy a tasty salmon barbecue.

He arrived in style with the smile that has become his political trademark — sitting on the back of a convertible, warmed by bright, sunny weather and a welcome from residents of all ages.

By the time the premier left for Parksville and Nanaimo, he had made a brief speech, and talked and handshook his way through a crowd that even included a dog, named Wimpy, sporting two Soledad election stickers on his shaggy back.

Premier Bennett had energy to spare. I felt as if I needed my batteries re-charged.

The premier keeps up a fast pace. But not so fast that he didn't have time to stop and talk briefly with eager supporters — two of them middle-aged women whose eyes glistened with tears of emotion as they spoke with him.

Duncan Beautification

Quaife, Kerr Continue Row Over City Plans

DUNCAN — Differences of opinion between Mayor Jim Quaife and Ald. G. A. Kerr over the city's beautification plans continued Thursday evening.

A special city council meeting was called to discuss tenders for the demolition of the old King's Daughters Hospital building and to consider alterations to a zoning bylaw.

After aldermen had completed their business, Ald. Kerr attempted to challenge the mayor's earlier statements and to prove that he had been doing his homework on the beautification plans. Earlier in the week Mayor Quaife said that Ald. Kerr had not been doing his homework after the latter had given a talk to Duncan and District Chamber of Commerce.

MAYOR OBJECTS
"If this could be proved, I would gladly resign," said Ald. Kerr. "I am on more committee than any other alderman."

CLUB PLAN
Ald. Ross Harder said: "I think these things can be ironed out — it's not necessary to do it at a council meeting."

After a meeting, Ald. Kerr suggested how service clubs could help beautify the city.

He said it was separate from the city's plans but would be "sooner, not five years from now."

He said his speech had not been an attack on the administration as Mayor Quaife had considered it to be. He added that the mayor should expect to stand up to criticism since he found it pardonable to freely criticize the SPCA, school board and some fraternal organizations.

Bennett Makes Road Promises

By IAN STREET

COURTENAY — The country is on fire, Premier Bennett told a gathering in the Social Credit committee rooms here Friday. He was undismayed by the lack of voter interest at several of his half a dozen public appearances in Island centres.

Elect him and we'll fix the road out of there. It's a lovely scenic road, but we'll make it a highway."

Socred candidate, Dr. Howard McDiarmid, seeking re-election in Alberni, later said the improvements would be made to a section of the highway in the vicinity of Cameron Lake.

The day began quietly with a trip to the Courtenay headquarters of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell. The premier, who crossed by ferry at 9 a.m. from Powell River drank coffee and nibbled a doughnut while chatting with Socred supporters. Then he paid an official visit to city hall.

TOTEM TALONS

He said young Indians, who recently formed the Totem Talons Club, question the sincerity of the government in setting up a fund which seeks to perpetuate the separate status of the native people in B.C.

Mr. Bennett assured him the government only wanted to help the Indians and promised that the province would impose nothing upon them and was actually seeking the views of the native people as to how the $2,000,000 a year interest from the fund could best be used for their benefit.

PARKSVILLE STOP

After another brief stop at Parksville village hall, the premier who was now accompanied by Mr. Campbell and Dr. McDiarmid travelled by road to Ladysmith. There, Mr. Bennett jumped from his government limousine and began walking up and down the main street shaking hands with store owners and residents.

He chatted with bank tellers, posed for pictures under a hair drier in a beauty salon and walked quickly through a number of other stores. He addressed a crowd of about 80 from a microphone set up on a street corner and then just before departing went into the local liquor store. There were no customers and one of the men behind the counter said business was quite good before the premier arrived.

FEW YEARS

Mr. Bennett told his audience that his wife was a former Ladysmith girl. "The reason I'm premier of B.C. is because I met a girl who used to live here," he said. "Her name was May Richards. I was from New Brunswick and lived in Alberta, but she got me out here and in a few years, she made me premier."

The premier added, "For old time's sake, as well as for the dynamic policies of this government, I ask every citizen of Ladysmith, both young and old, to vote Social Credit in this election and to support our young candidate, Dr. Charles Ennals."

Lengthy Nap Delays Speech Tour

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Premier Bennett took a nap Friday while supporters, Moose Lodge members and Indians waited, wondering whether they would see him on his Nanaimo visit.

He had been due to speak at the Nanaimo Indian Reserve at 6 p.m. When he didn't show up then, the time was changed to 6:45 p.m.

At the suggestion of Socred candidate Frank Ney, who had declined a speaking engagement at the Moose Lodge convention as Nanaimo mayor, Mr. Bennett was to speak to delegates.

As the time wore on, one of the campaign organizers said Mr. Bennett appeared in no hurry to get up.

Inside the Malaspina Hotel, where Mr. Bennett was taking his nap, Mr. Ney jumped to his feet and commented: "I'm going to wait five minutes more and then I'm going."

An official tried to dissuade him and he added: "I've waited here for an hour already. I have had it."

John McDougal, lodge district vice-president from Surrey, said: "I don't blame you. I feel the same way myself."

Then, in less than five minutes, word came that Premier Bennett was dressing. At 7:20 p.m. he arrived in the lobby.

He and Mr. Ney rushed down a flight of stairs to the banquet hall where he welcomed lodge members, asked for their support and shook hands all the way.

Then the Socred group piled into waiting cars and, amid a blare of horns, rushed to Harbor Park shopping mall where the parade was waiting to start.

After brief introductions, the parade went to the Capital Theatre where about 550 people waited. There was an overflow of about 50 people waiting in nearby Eagles' Hall.

Although there were only 20 waiting outside the theatre, and applause was weak when the party arrived, those who waited inside left no doubt about their support. The shouts, whistles, and applause could be heard half a block away.

The parade ran into trouble at one point when NDP-supporting parents objected to their children taking part. Out of the original 24, only 16 children were allowed to appear in the parade.

Nanaimo Meeting

Liberal Criticizes Ferry Service

NANAIMO — Liberal candidate Bob Plecas told an informal luncheon meeting of about 25 people Friday that Premier Bennett should begin to consider the people who use the ferry system, if he really wanted to claim that the ferries were serving the people's needs.

"Considering that the premier takes so much pride in the B.C. ferry system, I am amazed that he takes such a light view of the facilities offered to travellers using the system."

"For example, if you have ever used the ferry system between Nanaimo and Vancouver, you know that you can wait as long as four or five hours to get on a ferry, and if the temperature is in the high 70s while you sit with your children who are easily bored with waiting, you know that there should be some form of comfortable diversion," he said.

"I can see no reason why the ferry service can't afford to install some playground equipment — a bit of green grass, a few shade trees, and perhaps a place for ferry patrons to sit and wait in comfort for the ferry," said Mr. Plecas.

"Certainly, in view of the excellent revenues being generated by the ferry system, according to the chairman of the ferry authority, a few dollars could be spared to make the wait for ferries more tolerable."

"Mr. Bennett has said so often that B.C. is very tourist conscious, and yet his government does nothing to alleviate the very tiring wait for ferries that is so commonplace during the summer months. I find this completely inconsistent with the much-touted awareness for the tourist industry," Mr. Plecas said.

Log Storage Prohibited

NANAIMO — The transport department has announced that storage of logs in Nanaimo harbor is prohibited until further notice because of an over-storage of logs in the area. Ian MacLeod, an official of Nanaimo Marine Services said the notice is only a temporary measure brought on by unsettled weather.

Life Casual Mystery to Artist

Gum-Wrapper Philosophy

By DON GAIN

Life is essentially a mystery to Victoria artist Gordon Rice, who says his philosophy is "just a bunch of stuff I picked up on my way, like gum wrappers." It may sound flippant at first listen but it makes a surprising amount of sense.

"I feel that as much as possible it's good to make a philosophy out of your own discoveries," Mr. Rice said.

"It's important as a painter to be very honest," he added. "It's very difficult because life is too confusing."

Paintings are a statement of life, the artist believes. "Looking at them, the viewer should realize that the painting is not just something to be quickly categorized and then rejected. It should be considered and thought about. Otherwise it's just a cursory job."

The artist says he feels that philosophies or religions make more sense to one person than another.

"I have a personal philosophy. I feel that life is essentially a mystery. It would be true to say that I am very interested in Buddhism and have been for a long time."

The artist's philosophy seems to work very well. He's living where he wants to and doing what he wants to.

"We'd like to stay here indefinitely," he said. "It's isolated, peaceful. The people are both friendly and reserved. They are there when you need them but they respect your privacy and give you time to work."

Th Rice's — wife Esther, who

Victoria artist Gordon Rice, shown with daughters Constance, left, and Josefa, believes paintings are statement of life and therefore the painter must be honest, which in itself is difficult because modern life is too confusing. Mr. Rice says he feels life is a mystery and philosophies or religions may make more sense to one person than another. (William A. Boucher)

Youths Use Savings For Mormon Stint

Eight Mormon elders and two Mormon sisters have arrived in Victoria to do missionary work. The young people belong to a band of approximately 12,000 missionaries who each year go to all parts of the world to spread the gospel according to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

The young men and women, aged from 19 to 25, save up enough money to pay for their time away from home before they even leave.

For many it is several years of work followed by from two to 2½ years of missionary work. COST $3,000

According to Mrs. Joyce Stratton of Victoria, it will cost each of the 10 young people here about $3,000.

"And yet," she added, "When they are released to go home, they usually say it's been the best two years of their lives and many ask for extensions."

What is it that makes these youths give so much?

According to Mrs. Stratton, a member of the Victoria church, it is the special message the missionaries have.

DOORBELLS RING

They go about the streets of Greater Victoria in pairs ringing doorbells. When they are asked into a home they tell the story of Joseph Smith, who, the Mormons believe, was a prophet of God.

Mrs. Stratton told the story: "In 1820 Joseph Smith was a young man living in the state of New York."

"He wanted to join a church but as he visited those in his neighborhood he found confusion because there were so many. He decided to pray and ask God which of the churches was right."

GROVE OF TREES
 "He went to a grove of trees near his father's farm and knelt in prayer. As he was praying he saw a pillar of light exactly over his head, above the brightness of the sun, which descended gradually until it fell upon him."

"Then he saw, standing above him in the air, two personages in the form of men, whose brightness and glory defied all description."

"One of them called Joseph Smith by name and said, pointing to the other, 'This is my Beloved Son, hear Him!'"

LIFE CHANGED

"The visit of the Father and the Son changed Joseph's life, as well as millions of Mormons since. Joseph was commanded not to join any church but to restore the Church of Jesus Christ, in the exact pattern of the new New Testament Church, if he lived worthily."

"After 10 years of being proven, he was instructed by revelation from the Lord and restored the Church of Jesus Christ to this earth, with the same power and authority that was here in ancient times."

VICTORIA CHURCH

"This is the message these young people bring. This and the story of the origin of the Book of Mormon which deals with God's teachings to the people in the Americas at the same time the Bible was being compiled by the prophets in the Old World."

The Mormon Church in Victoria, on Quadra Street, has a membership of about 1,000.

Convent Rules Relaxed

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Vatican Thursday relaxed some of its rules governing nuns. Those who go outside their cloistered convents without permission no longer commit a mortal sin.

Also suspended is the old rule by which laymen could be excommunicated for entering cloistered convents. The superior may now allow nuns to leave the convent for special work after asking the authorization of the local bishop.

PARTY LEADERS SEEK ISLAND VOTES

'I Need Ney'— Bennett

By IAN STREET

NANAIMO — Premier Bennett called on an overflow crowd here Friday night to "join in the rising tide of support for Social Credit," and elect all four government candidates in northern Vancouver Island ridings Aug. 27.

He made the appeal to an audience of 678 which packed a downtown theatre and a handful who listened to his 40-minute speech over a public address system in a nearby hall.

Despite the good turnout, however, the Sacred end of this city's triple attraction for the evening which was billed as "Bennett, Berger, and Bingo" turned out to be a pretty tame affair. The audience included many brought in from other parts of the Island and a few from Powell River and there were only a few scattered boos and no heckling during the speeches.

BINGO BIGGER

The biggest crowd of the evening was at bingo in the civic arena which offered prizes worth $25,000 for the last game.

At the Sacred rally, Mr. Bennett made a strong pitch for the election next Wednesday of government candidates Frank Ney in Nanaimo, Dan Campbell in Comox, Dr. Howard McDiarmid in Alberni, and Dr. Charles Enns in Cowichan-Malahat. All were present and spoke briefly.

Because the government is the biggest business in the province, the premier said, it needs men of experience and administrative ability. He hinted at the many benefits which would come to this community if Mayor Ney was returned as the local M.L.A. rather than incumbent Dave Stupich, the New Democrat seeking re-election for a third term.

"I wouldn't be human if I didn't say I was in Nanaimo tonight on serious business. I need your help. I need your mayor Frank Ney."

PROMISE HOLDS

The premier said his promise to improve ferry and highway links to the north Island would be carried out in 1970 regardless of local results provided that Social Credit won the election. But he urged voters to show they appreciated the government's help. He added: "If you help us, we'll help you."

Mr. Bennett told the rally that while other governments were being forced to cut back their services this province was in such good financial shape that B.C. would continue to grow under Social Credit.

"With the help of Frank Ney we will help the city of Nanaimo expand and grow. Your mayor would have to."

Berger Woos Drivers

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

NANAIMO — NDP leader Tom Berger drew cheers here Friday night when he said in a packed school gymnasium that an NDP government will go into the car insurance business and cut premiums by 30 per cent.

Mr. Berger told about 600 people in the Quennell school gymnasium that car insurance companies "say they're all losing money — let's find out."

"We believe that the government plans will be 30 per cent lower" in premium rates than current rates of the 188 insurance companies in B.C.

UNJUST, COSTLY

Mr. Berger said the government legislation making it compulsory to buy car insurance from private companies is unjust, expensive and unfair. The NDP leader referred to the Wootton Royal Commission which he said had established as fact that insurance companies were charging exorbitant premiums and providing inadequate coverage.

"We don't believe that you should be forced to buy from these companies," Mr. Berger said. He said the motorist should be forced to buy from private companies or from a government plan.

PRaise QUOTED

With national NDP leader Tommy Douglas seated beside him, Mr. Berger said the car insurance plan introduced by the former Saskatchewan premier has been praised by "Consumers' Report" and that well-known NDP publication, the Wall Street Journal.

"If it's good enough for the Wall Street Journal, it's good enough for me," Mr. Berger said.

Mr. Berger's announcement drew several outbursts of cheers and applause from the apparently all-NDP meeting.

McGeer Aims Fire At U.S. Union Rule

By PETER KIERNAN

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer Friday night promised a Liberal government would wipe out any British Columbia legislation under which Canadian unions could be the object of discrimination.

He told a news conference that American domination of unions was "a threat to our sovereignty" and added that he would see to it that Canadian unions were given equal rights.

'DISTURBED'

"I am deeply disturbed by the degree of domination of labor unions by Americans. . . I am anxious that Canadian unions be allowed full participation," Dr. McGeer said.

He said that of 2,000,000 card-carrying union members in Canada, 70 per cent were in American-dominated unions. Between 1962 and 1966, $190,000,000 from Canadian unionists went into the coffers of U.S.-based organizations and only $130,000,000 came back to this country, he said.

"It is obvious that some U.S. unions are benefitting from Canadian contributions."

Dr. McGeer said a Liberal government would "take a long, hard look" at any arrangements under which union funds found their way from Canada to the U.S.

"No laws will exist that work to the disadvantage of Canadian unions," he said, citing what he termed "sweetheart agreements" in which a pact between business and unions could keep outside unions off the job.

"I want to make it clear that we are not anti-union, but pro Canadian union," he said.

The news conference was the Liberal leader's first function in Kamloops as he moved his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election into the interior for the second time.

Unlike the sometimes cool reception he received during a three-day Vancouver Island swing, which ended Thursday, he was greeted here by about 200 chanting, placard-waving supporters.

STRONG CAMPAIGNS

The Liberal candidate, Malcolm Bryson, and NDP candidate Jim Jacobs are both mounting strong campaigns against former highways minister P. A. Gagliardi, now minister without portfolio.

Mr. Bryson told the news conference that Premier Bennett's announcement that Mr. Gagliardi would be returned to the cabinet and given a portfolio, "has been calculated to put a very sharp knife to the throats of voters in this riding."

'Formula Stays'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney General Leslie Peterson, a former education minister, said Thursday the Social Credit government will not scrap the controversial formula governing school financing. It would be changed and adjusted as necessary.

He was speaking to the B.C. Teachers' Federation. For the second part of Bill Stasdal's series on B.C. education, dealing with the formula, see Page 26.

Trudeau Assault Charge Turned Down by JP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice of the Peace Don Stewart Friday turned down the attempt of a 17-year-old Ontario youth to bring Prime Minister Trudeau to court to face a common assault charge.

Mr. Stewart read a brief written judgment in which he said he found "inconclusive" the evidence of Richard Bruce Jesmer, 17, a laborer from Niagara Falls who claimed he was hit in the face by Trudeau here Aug. 8, and Jesmer's supporting witnesses.

He said he will issue no summons or warrant requiring Trudeau to face the charge in court.

Jesmer could appeal the decision to a higher court, but he said after the decision was given that he had not made up his mind.

Jesmer had testified under oath Tuesday that during an anti-Vietnam war protest Aug. 8 he called Trudeau "a creep" and "Mr. Trudeau" turned and hit me.

Mr. Stewart said he had heard sworn testimony from Jesmer and his witnesses Tuesday. "Because of the notoriety of this incident" he had also heard what he called extraneous evidence from three police officers who testified Tuesday "as friends of the court."

But even without this extraneous evidence, his judgment said, "the evidence of the informant and his witnesses, although apparently sincere, is inconclusive and when viewed in the light of all the circumstances in which the alleged incident took place, it would be, in my opinion, an abuse of the court's process to proceed further and therefore no summons or warrant will be issued."

Flower Spreaders Scattered by Tanks

PRAGUE (UPI) — Army tanks and troops broke up an anti-Soviet rally of 5,000 students Friday night in Brno, the Moravian capital where at least three persons have been killed protesting the first anniversary of the Soviet Union's invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia.

While students and soldiers were fighting for the fourth consecutive night in Brno, the government announced an emergency law providing swift punishment for disturbing the "socialist order."

The Brno students were reported spreading flowers through the square in memory of three persons killed there earlier in the week when the military force arrived.

The tanks blocked the major exits and the soldiers surrounded the square, then moved into it forcing the students out through a small street.

Voters' List Major Riddle for Albernis

By PETE LOUDON

PORT ALBERNI — A 43 per cent increase in the voters' list in Alberni electoral district since the 1966 list was compiled is confusing street corner election forecasters here.

By two-way they mean a battle between Dr. Howard McDiarmid, Social Credit, a Tolmie physician who won the seat by a comfortable margin (almost 2,000 votes) in 1966, and John Squire, NDP, who sat as an M.L.A. for Alberni between 1952 and 1966. Liberal candidate and political beginner Eugene Romanuk is generally conceded to be out of the running.

However, the vastly increased total of voters may help Romanuk too. A young candidate and a popular one with the younger set, he has geared his campaign to the first-time voters. There must be a lot of them. Either that or there are a lot of dead people on the list. Alberni voters' list in 1963 showed 14,860 eligible voters. This year it shows 21,326. If 73 per cent vote, as happened in 1966, the new wave of voters could throw out any calculations anyone might make on the basis of 1966 returns.

The suggestion that there are many people on the list who now are dead or who have moved away is not far-fetched. It was reliably learned that the enumeration conducted in this area with its far-flung polls, was so poor that the old list was used as a basis for the new one.

New names collected by enumerators were added, but few names, if any were deleted. More than one person has already made public complaints about finding a long-dead relative is listed to return to cast a ballot.

Returning officer Tom Johnstone went so far as to announce Wednesday that apparently there are some deceased listed and some situations were people have been listed more than once in different polls, but the Valley need have no fear, a person may only vote once.

His faith in the system isn't shared by a letter writer to the local Alberni Valley Times by Ivan Shumuk.

He says the voters' list is an unbelievable example of inefficiency or just plain stupidity and he fears it may be used as a reason for a demand by the losing candidates for a new election here.

Help for Students

New Time Wanted For Ferry

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Nanaimo school board is to ask the highways department to have the 8 a.m. Gabriola ferry schedule advanced 15 minutes so 25 junior high school students can get to school on time.

The change is needed because the students will be going to Woodlands junior high school instead of to John Barsby junior high, it was stated when the school board discussed the problem during its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night.

Another reason is because the board intends to cut down the number of buses chartered, from five to possibly only one, and have school transportation handled by the 12 owned by the district. The saving is estimated at about $50,000 a year.

EARLIER SCHEDULE

To make the saving, and reduce the present $199,650 transportation budget, the senior high school would have to go on an earlier schedule beginning at 8:30 a.m. Elementary schools would still open at 9 a.m. and most junior high schools would delay opening from 9:15 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

Because Cedar junior high school will not be open at least until Christmas, possibly afterward, that area's students will go onto afternoon shift at John Barsby school. The regular John Barsby students would take the morning shift. Gabriola Island students who would normally have attended John Barsby, will go to Woodlands.

Other subjects discussed included a need to find a speech therapist with a teaching certificate. Without the certificate, there would be no government grant toward hiring a therapist.

Portable stages will be investigated for use in forest park elementary school. The stage would allow full use of the entire gymnasium floor but would be available for other use when needed.

Multiplicity of use and storage were given as examples of benefits and problems of portable stages.

Trustee Marge Warwick supported the experiment, thought to be the first in the province, but remarked: "I'm very skeptical."

Police Probe Theft at Inn

CHEMAINUS — Chemainus RCMP are investigating a break-in at the Horseshoe Bay Inn, Chemainus early Friday.

"Who ever did it jammed the window right out of the place," said Gerry Smith, proprietor. "They took $40 to $50 out of the till, bottled beer and some pickled eggs."

"The police had made a routine check at 3 a.m. and found everything secured but when Al Scott, who lives in the inn, went into the parlor at 7 a.m., he found the fridge door and others wide open. It must have happened between 3 a.m. and 7 a.m."

Lifeguards End Duty

NORTH COWICHAN — Lifeguard services which were provided daily from June 23 at North Cowichan's four public swimming areas will end for the season Aug. 25.

The swimming areas include Maple Bay, Crofton, Chemainus and Fuller Lake Park.

Vancouver Man Dies Near Fishing Boat

PORT HARDY — Vancouver fisherman Charles Henry Hoey, 51, was found dead in the water near his fishboat Thursday evening, on the shore of Masterman Island near Port Hardy.

RCMP for a time sought two other men believed on the 36-foot boat, but they turned up safe on another fishboat. Foul play was not suspected in the death. It is believed he was trying to free the grounded boat when he drowned.

Escaper Held In Chase

NANAIMO — A man who escaped from Colquitz Jail, Wilkeson Road, during the weekend was recaptured in downtown Nanaimo Monday afternoon after police chased him on foot from a hotel only a block away from RCMP headquarters.

Gordon Walter Bates, 25, of Nanaimo was arrested on Victoria Crescent. Police said he would be charged with car theft and escaping lawful detention. A car was abandoned at the Occidental Hotel, Fitzwilliam Street, before the chase.

Bates was serving a term for driving while intoxicated and possession of a stolen car. He was due to be released in March.

Jail Term Imposed On Driver

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A seven-day jail term and a three-month driving licence suspension was imposed on Peter Vernahine, 31, of Victoria, when he appeared in Shawnigan Lake Provincial Court Wednesday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The next time some personnel manager says you're too old,

Fight back.

You can, you know.

Pity is,

Too many folks accept discrimination.

Too many expect their age or sex to lose them job opportunities and fair pay.

Too many expect their ancestry or skin colour to deny them common privileges and decent consideration.

It's time to fight back.

In British Columbia, you have rights.

And your government protects those rights.

In June, 1969, the Province of British

Columbia proclaimed The Human Rights Act for the promotion and protection of the fundamental rights of every individual in this province.

The Act makes it unlawful to:

Discriminate in hiring, continuing employment, membership in a trade union, because of race, religion, sex, colour, nationality, ancestry, place of origin, or because of age if between 45 and 65.

Discriminate in seeking or advertising for employees.

Discriminate in renting or selling houses

or commercial property.

Discriminate in providing accommodation, services, or facilities where the public is customarily admitted.

Discriminate by paying women lower wages than men for substantially the same work, done in the same establishment.

Leslie Peterson introduced this much-needed legislation because, as Minister of Labour, he saw it his duty to make sure every British Columbian gets a fair shake.

The Act has teeth. Now that it is passed, the provincial government has appointed a Human Rights Director to handle complaints, and a Human Rights Commission to enforce the Act and deal with offenders.

If you'd like to know more about Human Rights in British Columbia or if you have a complaint, Les Peterson wants to hear from you. Write him through The Director, Human Rights Branch, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., and help us keep British Columbia free of discrimination.

PARTY LEADERS SEEK ISLAND VOTES

'I Need Ney'— Bennett

By IAN STREET

NANAIMO — Premier Bennett called on an overflow crowd here Friday night to "join in the rising tide of support for Social Credit," and elect all four government candidates in northern Vancouver Island ridings Aug. 27.

He made the appeal to an audience of 678 which packed a downtown theatre and a handful who listened to his 40-minute speech over a public address system in a nearby hall.

Despite the good turnout, however, the Sacred end of this city's triple attraction for the evening which was billed as "Bennett, Berger, and Bingo" turned out to be a pretty tame affair. The audience included many brought in from other parts of the Island and a few from Powell River and there were only a few scattered boos and no heckling during the speeches.

BINGO BIGGER

The biggest crowd of the evening was at bingo in the civic arena which offered prizes worth $25,000 for the last game.

At the Sacred rally Mr. Bennett made a strong pitch for the election next Wednesday of government candidates Frank Ney in Nanaimo, Dan Campbell in Comox, Dr. Howard McDiarmid in Alberni, and Dr. Charles Enns in Cowichan-Malahat. All were present and spoke briefly.

Because the government is the biggest business in the province, the premier said, it needs men of experience and administrative ability. He hinted at the many benefits which would come to this community if Mayor Nev was returned as the local MLA rather than incumbent Dave Stupich, the New Democrat seeking re-election for a third term.

"I wouldn't be human if I didn't say I was in Nanaimo tonight on serious business. I need your help. I need your mayor Frank Ney."

PROMISE HOLDS

The premier said his promise to improve ferry and highway links to the north Island would be carried out in 1970 regardless of local results provided that Social Credit won the election. But he urged voters to show they appreciated the government's help. He added: "If you help us, we'll help you."

Mr. Bennett told the rally that while other governments were being forced to cut back their services this province was in such good financial shape that B.C. would continue to grow under Social Credit.

"With the help of Frank Ney we will help the city of Nanaimo expand and grow. Your mayor would have to

Berger Woos Drivers

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

NANAIMO — NDP leader Tom Berger drew cheers here Friday night when he said in a packed school gymnasium that an NDP government will go into the car insurance business and cut premiums by 30 per cent.

Mr. Berger told about 600 people in the Quennell school gymnasium that car insurance companies "say they're all losing money — let's find out." "We believe that the government plans will be 30 per cent lower" in premium rates than current rates of the 188 insurance companies in B.C.

UNJUST, COSTLY

Mr. Berger said the government legislation making it compulsory to buy car insurance from private companies is unjust, expensive and unfair.

The NDP leader referred to the Wootton Royal Commission which he said had established as fact that insurance companies were charging exorbitant premiums and providing inadequate coverage.

"We don't believe that you should be forced to buy from these companies," Mr. Berger said. He said the motorist should be forced to buy from private companies or from a government plan.

PRAISE QUOTED

With national NDP leader Tommy Douglas seated beside him, Mr. Berger said the car insurance plan introduced by the former Saskatchewan premier has been praised by "Consumers' Report" and that well-known NDP publication, the Wall Street Journal.

"If it's good enough for the Wall Street Journal, it's good enough for me," Mr. Berger said.

Mr. Berger's announcement drew several outbursts of cheers and applause from the apparently all-NDP meeting.

McGeer Aims Fire At U.S. Union Rule

By PETER KIERNAN

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal leader Dr. Pat McGeer Friday night promised a Liberal government would wipe out any British Columbia legislation under which Canadian unions could be the object of discrimination.

He told a news conference that American domination of unions was "a threat to our sovereignty" and added that he would see to it that Canadian unions were given equal rights.

'DISTURBED'

"I am deeply disturbed by the degree of domination of labor unions by Americans. I am anxious that Canadian unions be allowed full participation," Dr. McGeer said.

He said that of 2,000,000 card-carrying union members in Canada, 70 per cent were in American-dominated unions. Between 1962 and 1966, $180,000,000 from Canadian unionists went into the coffers of U.S.-based organizations and only $130,000,000 came back to this country, he said.

"It is obvious that some U.S. unions are benefitting from Canadian contributions."

Dr. McGeer said a Liberal government would "take a long, hard look" at any arrangements under which union funds found their way from Canada to the U.S.

"No laws will exist that work to the disadvantage of Canadian unions," he said, citing what he termed "sweetheart agreements" in which a pact between business and unions could keep outside unions off the job.

"I want to make it clear that we are not anti-union, but pro Canadian union," he said.

The news conference was the Liberal leader's first function in Kamloops as he moved his campaign for the Aug. 27 provincial election into the Interior for the second time.

Unlike the sometimes cool reception he received during a three-day Vancouver Island swing, which ended Thursday, he was greeted here by about 200 chanting, placard-waving supporters.

STRONG CAMPAIGNS

The Liberal candidate, Malcolm Bryson, and NDP candidate Jim Jacobs are both mounting strong campaigns against former highways minister P. A. Gagliardi, now minister without portfolio.

Mr. Bryson told the news conference that Premier Bennett's announcement that Mr. Gagliardi would be returned to the cabinet and given a portfolio, "has been calculated to put a very sharp knife to the throats of voters in this riding."

'Formula Stays'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney General Leslie Peterson, a former education minister, said Thursday the Social Credit government will not scrap the controversial formula governing school financing. It would be changed and adjusted as necessary.

He was speaking to the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

For the second part of Bill Staudal's series on B.C. education, dealing with the formula, see Page 26.

Trudeau Assault Charge Turned Down by JP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice of the Peace Don Stewart Friday turned down the attempt of a 17-year-old Ontario youth to bring Prime Minister Trudeau to court to face a common assault charge.

Mr. Stewart read a brief written judgment in which he said he found "inconclusive" the evidence of Richard Bruce Jesmer, 17, a laborer from Niagara Falls who claimed he was hit in the face by Trudeau here Aug. 8, and Jesmer's supporting witnesses.

He said he will issue no summons or warrant requiring Trudeau to face the charge in court.

APPEAL POSSIBLE

Jesmer could appeal the decision to a higher court, but he said after the decision was given that he had not made up his mind.

Jesmer had testified under oath Tuesday that during an anti-Vietnam war protest Aug. 8 he called Trudeau "a... creep" and "Mr. Trudeau turned and hit me."

Mr. Stewart said he had heard sworn testimony from Jesmer and his witnesses Tuesday. "Because of the notoriety of this incident" he had also heard what he called extraneous evidence—from three police officers who testified Tuesday "as friends of the court."

But even without this extraneous evidence, his judgment said, "the evidence of the informant and his witnesses, although apparently sincere, is inconclusive and when viewed in the light of all the circumstances in which the alleged incident took place, it would be, in my opinion, an abuse of the court's process to proceed further and therefore no summons or warrant will be issued."

Flower Spreaders Scattered by Tanks

PRAGUE (UPI) — Army tanks and troops broke up an anti-Soviet rally of 5,000 students Friday night in Brno, the Moravian capital where at least three persons have been killed protesting the first anniversary of the Soviet Union's invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia.

While students and soldiers were fighting for the fourth consecutive night in Brno, the government announced an emergency law providing swift punishment for disturbing the "socialist order."

The Brno students were reported spreading flowers through the square in memory of three persons killed there earlier in the week when the military force arrived.

The tanks blocked the major exits and the soldiers surrounded the square, then moved into it forcing the students out through a small street.

Voters' List Major Riddle for Albernis

By PETE LOUDON

PORT ALBERNI — A 43 per cent increase in the voters' list in Alberni electoral district since the 1966 list was compiled is confusing street corner election forecasters here.
